McPherson ... Shoes

Quality is the foundation of a shoe and is more essential than style. Without the proper foundation in a shoe, style will crumble and fall like a house built upon an insecure foundation. The prime factor in good shoemaking is the quality of the material used—then workmanship.

For many years McPherson Shoes for men and women have represented the highest art in shoemaking. The styles are pre-eminently individual and distinct. The quality absolutely reliable, and workmanship the best.

All we ask is a chance to show you what we call good value.

Present—Councillors Gibbard, Bogart, Alexander, Steacy, and Burrows. The minutes of the last regular session were read and confirmed.

A communication was read from Mrs. A. Grange, secretary of the Women's Christian Temperance Union stating that they purpose holding their annual rummage sale on Friday, and Saturday, November, 26th and 27th, and requested the use of the town hall on those dates. Granted.

A communication was read from the Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock Association stating that they purpose holding their annual show on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, December 14th, 15th and 16th, and asked that the use of the town hall be granted them on those dates, also the day previous and the day after, and that the council make the Association the usual grant of $25. Granted.

A communication was read from the G. N. W. Telegraph Co., asking that the council remit to them a check for $40 as payment for use of their poles upon which the electric light wires are strung. Ordered paid.

Reeve Rutman entered.

A communication was read from W. S. Newman in reference to his taking out a Transient Traders' License. Referred to the Finance Committee to report.

A communication was read from W. C. Vine, Secretary of the Excelsior Fire Brigade, complaining of parties entering the fire hall and interfering with the fire fighting appliances. Referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

NEWS NOTES.

Potato crop about Prescott yields 800 bushels to the acre, the greatest ever.

Edison, the great inventor, is a Canadian by birth, and was born at or near Vienna, in the eastern part of the county of Elgin, Ont.

Dr. Stephen B. Pollard, Toronto, convicted of performing a criminal operation, was sentenced on Saturday morning, to five years in penitentiary.

A fine of $25 along with costs was imposed on Roland Tivey, of Peterboro, for shooting partridge near Fenelon Falls. Partridge are protected by law this year.

One of the most interesting and much liked land marks of Frontenac passed away in the death of Rosa Quintell, maiden daughter of the late James Quintell, aged seventy-eight years, after a two weeks' illness. She was born on Amherst Island.

Next year Lent will begin on February 6th, fifteen days earlier than it did this year, so that Easter Sunday will fall on March 27th. It will be the second earliest Easter in a quarter of a century, that of March 22nd, 1894 being the vernal equinox in that period.

Coreless as well as seedless are the apples produced on a single tree of unknown variety in an eight-acre orchard at Moran Prairie, five miles north of Spokane, Wash., owned by R. K. Short, a rancher. The largest of the fruit is three inches in diameter, the coloring being of a yellowish green, streaked with red.

At New York on Saturday James J. Jeffries and Jack Johnson signed articles to fight for the heavyweight championship of the world, not later than July 5th, 1910. The fight will be to a finish. Of the receipts, seventy five per cent is to go to the winner. Jeffries would not agree to a twenty-round fight, which Johnson wanted. He insisted on forty five or more.

Mr. J. W. Barber of Deseronto, who has been superintendent on one of the 200-acre farms in Prince Edward County, of the Lehigh Portland Cement Co., threshed out 4,300 bushels of grain and had over 100 tons of hay, which is considered a very extraordinary yield. When he took hold of the land it was in a very bad state of cultivation.

The 27th annual congress of the Salvation Army was held in Toronto last week. Just twenty-seven years ago two Salvationists commenced the work of the Salvation Army in Canada, at London, Ont. In that period of years the work has spread wonderfully over the whole Dominion, until now there are upwards of a thousand officers, and tens of thousands of other workers.

There is suspicion that the arrest of Frederick Gebhardt in Islip, I. L., charged with wholesale bigamy and several murders, may clear up the Barton murder mystery at Hamilton, Ont., which occurred October 9th, 1905. Gebhardt's methods bear a striking similarity to the circumstances surrounding the death of the unknown woman in the bush on Hamilton mountain.

The Express has received a copy of the revised edition of Farm Weeds. It contains seventy-six plates of weeds and weed seeds, illustrated in their natural colors, and 180 pages of text. It is published to meet the demand from farmers and others who desire a copy for their personal use. The unusual cost of its issue precludes it from those publications of the department that are printed for general free distribution. It costs $1.

Mrs. Robinson, the unfortunate woman under sentence to be hanged at Sudbury three weeks hence, for the murder of the infants of her daughters, will not have to suffer the death penalty. This much has already been decided upon by the Minister

Mr. E. J. Roy appeared before the council and asked that a walk be built on Water street leading to the foundry premises. Also that a few short steps be built leading from the walk at the foot of Centre street to connect with the Water street walk. Granted.

Moved by Coun. Gibbard, seconded by Coun. Steacy, that a red incandescent electric lamp be placed over each fire alarm box in the town. Carried.
Coun. Alexander reported that it was impossible to repair the furnace in use in the town hall. When the jacket had been removed, it was found impossible to make the necessary repairs.

Referred to the Town Property Committee to report at next session.

Moved by Coun. Alexander, seconded by Coun. Gibbard, that this council be a committee to wait upon the County Council, at its session on Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of seeking a grant towards the cost of the new steel bridge. Carried.

Moved by Coun. Bogart, that the Streets Committee at once take the necessary steps for the opening of the bridge, and to settle the question of who has to pay for the flooring which it is intended to put on this fall instead of the concrete flooring, and to take such steps as are necessary to protect the town's interest in the future. Mrs. Robinson, the unfortunate woman under sentence to be hanged at Sudbury three weeks hence, for the murder of the infants of her daughters, will not have to suffer the death penalty. This much has already been decided upon by the Minister of Justice. It is doubtful, however, if the Cabinet Council will see its way clear to grant a full pardon. It is estimated that over one hundred and fifty thousand persons have petitioned for clemency, and the department is still to be flooded with further petitions.

Ninety-eight thousand citizens of Canada rejoiced this week over the receipt of cheques from the liquidators of the defunct York Loan and Savings Co. The cheques were sent out on Monday by A. E. Herrington, who is attending to the financial end of the business for the National Trust Co., of Toronto, the assignees. The cheques sent out amount to over half a million, or approximately $650,000. The dividend declared is 25 per cent. It is expected that the next dividend will amount to 25 per cent. It will be declared when the rest of the property of the company is disposed of. The company owned 52,000 feet of frontage in Toronto, half of which has been sold. If land values increase before the rest is sold the other dividend will be proportionately larger.

Ontario is making rapid progress towards temperance, according to the official figures of the provincial license department. This year there are in all 2,328 liquor license throughout the province, of which 2,010 are tavern, 253 are shop, 23 are wholesale, and 42 club licenses. In 1874—thirty-five years ago—there were 6,195 licenses in the province, and the decrease has been steady, year by year, until the present figures have been reached. The annual decrease has been specially marked during the past five years. There are now one hundred and ninety-five municipalities in the province under local option, and 149 in which licenses are not issued on government policy. The local option municipalities include 91, in which the by-law was carried under the three-fifths clause. In 334 of the total 806 municipalities in Ontario prohibition consequently obtains, the percentage being an unusually large one. If temperance sentiment continues to grow in proportion to the past five years only the largely populated centres will be able to secure licenses under the act.

OBITUARY.

On Saturday last devout men carried Rev. William Bryers to his burial in the Riverside cemetery in Napanee.
He passed peacefully away from this mortal life to the life unending at the midnight hour on Wednesday last,
October 28th. For the past 16 years
Mr. Bryers has had his place amongst the Superannuated ministers of the Methodist church, prior to his superannuation his life was one of great activity in the regular round of a successful ministry. Born in the village of Moy, County Tyrone, in Ireland, he was one of a family of ten, and at the age of nineteen he left his native land to try his fortune across the sea. He joined his brother, a minister of the U. E. church work in the United States, who died a few years ago.
William Bryers however longed for the institutions which he held dear and which he could find in this British Colony, hence he crossed the border and found his way into this Province of Ontario. It was on the Bath circuit, somewhere in the vicinity of Napanee, that John Black, of precious memory, met with him, who was then a young school teacher, and from Black's hands he received his license as a local preacher. In 1853 he was received on probation for the ministry in the city of Hamilton, when Enoch Wood was in the chair, and after that circuit work, and a term in Victoria College, followed by his ordination in the Richmond Street Church in Toronto, and his appointment to the Bowmanville circuit under the chairmanship of John Ryerson, after that a short time in the Province of Quebec and then for the remainder of his ministry in Western Canada. In his later days mentally beclouded even to the extent that another should lead him, unable betimes to recognize members of his own household, yet to him was given this grace that he always knew that he was of the family and household of God, ready to the very last to give a clear and unflinching testimony to the saving and sustaining grace of God.
The eloquent tongue is stilled, the bright and cheery face will gladden us here no more, but we may assuredly say of William Bryers, "there is hope in his death." Some survive him who will remember the high company he kept in the earlier days of his ministry the "giants in the earth" those days when the Ryerson's, Anson Green, S.
S. Nelles, Enoch Wood, James Elliott, to mention no names of living men, who help form the policy of the church of today, and those who survive him who enjoyed that fellowship will feel tender and kindly thoughts of the bereaved home circle now committed to their prayers. The service was conducted by his Chairman, Rev. W.
H. Emsley, assisted by his pastor,
Rev. G. W. McColl and Rev. C. W.
Demille, whilst resident ministers of the town bore him to his grave to await the resurrection of the just at the last great day.

DENBIGH.

Mrs. E. Wagar has returned to our village after an absence of several months, visiting relatives at Deseronto and vicinity. She was accompanied by her mother who is going to enjoy our fresh mountain air for a while.

Mrs. (Dr.) Adams who enjoyed a couple of months visiting her son and other friends at Kingston and vicinity also returned to our quiet village.

Mr. Gustav Stein is away in New Ontario with the intention to invest in some real estate near Cobalt and perhaps reside on it in the future.

Mr. Robert Ferguson has leased his farm to Mr. A. Armstrong and also intends to leave for Cobalt in a few days.

On the contrary, Mr. Wm. Warlick who last spring sold his farm here to Mr. John Lane, and moved with his family to Berlin, Ont., with the intention to quit farming for good, has come to the conclusion that he made a mistake in leaving Denbigh, and returned last week with his family and is negotiating for the re-purchase of his former farm.

Mr. Wm. Chatson has just completed the repairs of the Gillies Bros., Company's slides and dam before the opening of the hunting season and is now going to enjoy a couple of weeks sport. His brother, Frank Chatson, of Brockville, has also arrived at the old homestead for the open season and intends to enjoy a little more genuine sport this fall than he did last season.

A great many settlers in our Municipality are very much dissatisfied that no Settlers' Permits to kill deer for their own use, are issued this season for 25 cents each. A number of them do not intend to take out a $2.00 license, and will either not hunt at all this fall or run the risk of being fined if they kill any. Our woods are getting pretty well filled again with outside sportsmen and the crack of their rifles and baying of their hounds can be heard in all directions.

Science and Immortality, by Sir Oliver Lodge.—It will fascinate those who take a pleasure in thoughtful reading. There is not a dull line in it.

The Calling of Dan Matthews.—This is a great book. It will repay the careful and honest reader, quite as good a book for the layman as the parson.

Priscilla of the Good Intent.—A story with an excellent design. English rural life. It is not a bit curtailed, and there are some folks left who like a long quiet story, this ought to suit them very well.

Every Man a King, by Dr. Marden—A gem, every man and every boy should read, and if they begin it, they will be compelled to read it, it grips you.

The Birth of Modern Italy.—To those who were interested in the lecture of Dr. Lavall at the Historical Society last week this book will have a peculiar value, as it treats upon the same subject matter and goes into many details making it a very readable volume.

The Serpent book.—This handsome volume brings our excellent nature series up to date. It is beautifully illustrated and will be in great demand to the boys and girls who will be able through the information to be gathered from it to distinguish the different members of the reptile species and to learn their habits and peculiarities and it is hoped that instead of regarding every snake and turtle as something to be ruthlessly despatched regardless of its innocent nature, our young people may see something both interesting and good in these despised creatures.

Truxton King.—A Story of Graustark, by George Barr McCutcheon—Truxton King, big, handsome, good natured and young, ranges over the face of the earth looking for romance and adventure, and finding none until he reaches Graustark, where things begin to happen with a rush characteristic of that enchanted country.

Poppea of the Post Office, by Mabel Oggoode Wright—The author of "The Garden of a Commuter's Wife" has taken for the background of her new book the semi-rural life of New York in the passing generation. Poppea is the daughter of the Village Postmaster and the book tells of her romance.

The Man of the Mountain, by S. R. Crockett—A tale of the Franco-Prussian War in the year 1871. The German army's presence in Switzerland furnishes the background for the story, which gives a delightful picture of Swiss family life, even in the stirring scenes of war.

THE THINGS THAT REMAIN

Blessed Be the Adversities That Uncover the Real Riches of Life

"And now abideth faith, hope, love."—I. Cor., xiii., 13.

After all, even when it seems that the worst has happened to us, we come to know that it is not the worst, that there are deeper depths of misery and, what is more important, that there remain to us possessions of value greater than all we have lost. The storms that sweep down on us have no power to uproot our trees of life.

Like old Job, we may be thrown upon the dung-hill, bereft of our kin and friends, despoiled of our possessions, and racked with pain, and still the spirit rise victorious and memory and imagination discover comforts and resources that put to rout the pessimisms of the prosperous and the pain-free.

We might never know the real value of life but for the loss of unworthy things we have valued too highly; we might never know how rich we really are but for the harsh hands that despoil us of that which we once counted as riches.

THE PIERCING SORROWS

are the ones that break through the crust of life and open the worth under the surface.

Many a man finds out what is in him by losing the things he has put about him or by the sweeping away of those protective walls which good fortune had built about him. Inner resources are developed, external aids fall from us. We learn in time to bless the hand that seemed so cruel when it thrust us from some sheltered nook and compelled us to battle with naked fists against the world.

When the true man is left destitute it is surprising to see how much remains. The man is there with his will, memory, imagination, his power to create and to conquer, to make riches of the heart, to win friends, to enter into fellowship with the spirits of all ages, to appreciate and possess the universe of the things that are eternal and imperishable.

Destitution of things is the fate that awaits us all; some may know it often during life; in some measure losses must be in every life, while all must some day lose the grip on things, must bid farewell to all possessions and carry out of this stage of being only their own selves. It were well for us if we learned to see in this not a despoiling but a discovery of better and greater treasures.

He would be a foolish man who cared only for the apple blossoms and nothing for the coming fruit. We would count him a fool who continued in manhood to pour out exclusive affection

ON CHILDHOOD'S TOYS.

Yet that is just what many of us are doing, living for the passing and trivial, and so losing the eternal and truly valuable.

Life is just the chance to get rich in this way and so to have a self that enriches the ages. Neither pain nor poverty nor even death has terrors to those who know how little any of these can take from him. The secret of life is the discovery of this life which is eternal because above the ills and accidents of time.

The evil days must come. Happy are they who can view them with equanimity, because they are rich in the things beyond their reach; though the barns may be empty and the bank account fail they look within and find quiet thoughts, memory stretches like a fair land behind, and they hold communion with the great and good of all days. Faith, and hope, and love are theirs.

These are the abiding things, the unfading riches, the perennial blossoms, the streams that flow forever and follow us all through the desert. They are so easily had that the wonder is that any are poor, and he who has them can never know destitution or be utterly lost.

HENRY F. COPE.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, NOV. 7.

Lesson VI. Paul a Prisoner—the Shipwreck. Acts 27. 27 to 28.
10. Golden Text, Psa. 34. 22.

Verse 27. The fourteenth night—Reckoning from the time of departure from Fair Havens. Since then they had been tossed on a wild sea.

The sea of Adria—An arm of the Mediterranean, including the entire stretch of waters between Crete and Sicily.

Surmised—From the change in currents or from the different sound of the waves.

28. Sounded—Doubtless the only method in ancient times of sailing in the dark. The details here have been proved to be true to fact.

posing sea, and into this bank was the ship driven."

42. Kill the prisoners—See note in Word Studies of July 11, on Acts 16. 27.

43. Desiring to save Paul—Paul's courage and resourcefulness, as well as his piety, could not fail to have impressed all on board the ship.

Chapter 28, verse 1. Melita—Some have tried to identify this with a small island, Meleda, in the Adriatic Sea. But this is improbable. The present Adriatic (Gulf of Venice) is much smaller than the one so called in ancient times. The island of Malta is unquestionably the one.

2. Barbarians—Not necessarily uncivilized, but, in the original sense, a people neither Greek nor Roman. They probably spoke a Phoenician dialect, as most of the inhabitants of Malta came from Carthage.

Received us all—Into their dwellings, is of course, implied.

3. Paul had gathered a bundle of sticks—Notice all through this story

SOME BEAUTY SECRETS

LOVELY WOMEN AND THEIR MANY "MAKE-UPS."

Queen Alexandra's Youthful Complexion — Czarina Uses a Certain Soap.

Some time ago it was asserted that Queen Alexandra had discovered the elixir of youth in a certain enamel with which her face was covered every day, thus hiding the wrinkles which tell the story of advancing years. Anyone, however, who has been close to Her Majesty on the occasion of a public appearance must have had their doubts to the truth of this report. As a matter of fact, the Queen relies for her youthful complexion solely on facial massage and a certain kind of cream, the recipe for which was given to her by Queen Victoria, who obtained it from a popular prima donna of the 'sixties, says London Tit-Bits.

This cream makes wrinkles almost impossible and imparts to the complexion that youthful freshness for which Her Majesty is so famed. The secret of its manufacture has never been divulged, except to two or three of the Queen's most intimate acquaintances.

SCENTS AND SOAPS.

Queen Alexandra does not care much for perfumes, although at times she uses a little eau de Cologne and violet. On the other hand, the Czarina is passionately fond of the strongest scents. Her favorite essence, too, is violet, and for several weeks in early spring hundreds of women and girls may be seen at Grasse gathering the blossoms from which the Czarina's perfume is made. In addition, however, to using perfume for her wearing apparel, the Czarina causes her rooms to be sprinkled hourly with rare perfume, creating an atmosphere which the average healthy Englishwoman would probably find intolerable.

Of late years the Czarina has been obliged to "make-up" very considerably. Ill-health and worry have ruined her complexion and figure, and when making public appearances rouge powder has to be resorted to. She derives great benefit, however, from a certain soap made by a Paris firm from a recipe which they dare not divulge or employ on behalf of any other customer.

BEAUTIFUL SHOULDERS.

This reminds one that the German Empress, justly famed for her beautiful shoulders, gives the credit to a certain spermaceti soap. The preparation used by her has a deliciously refreshing odor, relaxes the tiny muscles, and at the same time acts as a marvellous tonic upon the tender cuticle of the face and neck. Peppermint, a solvent so cheap that no one would dream of adulterating it, Her Majesty employs as a dentifrice. New-mown hay is her favorite handkerchief perfume, and the Royal suite receives frequent atomizations of eau de Cologne. The Empress powders freely with poudre de riz, a fashion her august consort does not object to, although his strictures upon dyed hair compel her to refrain from attempting to darken her prematurely white coiffure by artificial means.

HOME.

SEASONABLE RECIPES.

Cooking Cranberries.—Take two quarts of cranberries, wash and put in one pint of water, and let boil till soft. Stir in a pinch of soda. Skim off froth. Sugar to sweeten. Cook like jelly, pour in a glass mold and let get cold. It is like preserves.

Plum Marmalade.—Wash a basket of red California plums and cut them into small pieces without removing the skins. Put the fruit into a porcelain or granite kettle, and let it boil ten minutes. At the end of that time add four pounds of granulated sugar and one pound of chopped raisins and boil twenty minutes longer. Add the rind of one and the juice of two oranges. Boil five minutes additional. Pour into jelly glasses or small jars and when cool seal.

Delightful Butter.—Cook down until juice is almost gone one can of unsweetened cherries. Add sugar and cook until of the consistency of jam. This is excellent and always fresh because made when ready to use.

Tutti Frutti.—One cupful of pineapple cut in small pieces, one cupful of currants, one cupful of cherries, one cupful of raspberries, one cupful of blackberries, six peaches, cut up in small pieces, one-half pound of figs, cut up, one lemon, one orange and rind of both, one-fourth pound of blanched almonds, three and one-half cupfuls sugar and a half cupful of boiling water. Boil from twenty minutes to one-half hour. Fine with cold meats.

CAKE MAKING.

Spice Cake.—Two cupfuls of sugar, light brown; one cupful of sour milk, one cupful of butter, one cupful of cornstarch, two cupfuls of flour, one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of nutmeg, one-half teaspoonful of allspice, five eggs; beat yolks with sugar and butter, add beaten whites last. One-half teaspoonful of soda, sour milk, one teaspoonful of baking powder, in flour. Frosting: Boil one and one-half cupfuls of granulated sugar and one-half cup of cold water until it hairs. Then pour into the beaten whites of three eggs and beat. When this commences to get stiff add one cup of raisins and beat until stiff.

Lemon Sponge Cake.—One cupful sifted sugar, one cupful cold water. Boil this till it becomes a thin syrup, add this while hot to beaten whites of five eggs. Beat this twenty minutes, then add the beaten yolks of six eggs, one cupful sifted flour added slowly, grater rind of one lemon, and piece of one-half lemon. Make a boiled frosting, add one-half the juice of one lemon. Use a square tin for cake frosting top. Have the oven just warm when the cake is put in, increasing the heat gradually, baking one hour.

Layer Cake.—Sift together in your mixing bowl one cupful of sugar, two cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of cream tartar, one-half teaspoonful of soda, break one egg in teacup and fill with sweet milk; pour in centre of mixing bowl, add three tablespoonfuls melted butter, beat thoroughly, bake in three layers.

The sea of Adria—An arm of the Mediterranean, including the entire stretch of waters between Crete and Sicily.

Surmised—From the change in currents or from the different sound of the waves.

28. Sounded—Doubtless the only method in ancient times of sailing in the dark. The details here have been proved to be true to fact. This point on the northeast coast of Malta is known as Saint Paul's Bay.

29. Let go four anchors from the stern—This would keep the vessel pointed toward the shore, but prevent it from being dashed on the rocks.

Wished—May be rendered also, "prayed."

30. Lay out anchors from the fore-ship—This would secure the ship fore as well as aft. In order to do this they must lower from the deck the rowboat which had been hoisted in from the storm (verse 16), and by which they hoped to save themselves.

31. Said to the centurion—Who seems to have had a great deal to do with the management of the ship.

Ye cannot be saved—Paul had assured them that God would help them to safety. But he will leave no human resource unused. Without the practical experience of these sailors, the manoeuvring, described later, would have been impossible.

34. This is for your safety—They would stand no chance struggling in the deep water unless their bodies were strengthened with food. The preceding verse probably does not mean that they literally fasted for an entire fortnight, but that they had taken only snatches of food and were in an exhausted condition.

35, 36. Gave thanks . . . in the presence of all—This was an act of Jewish, as well as Christian, piety. It must have deeply impressed the heathen sailors and soldiers, and was a great deal to inspire them with good cheer.

37. Two hundred threescore and sixteen. The numbering at this point in the narrative is most natural. It would be important to both the captain and the centurion to know precisely how many lives they were accountable for. The number is not excessive, though large. There were about six hundred on the vessel on which Joseph was wrecked.

38. Knew not the land. Being close to the shore, and the weather being stormy, even the experienced sailors might be deceived about the island of Malta, which, to many of them, was, undoubtedly, familiar.

39. Casting off the anchors—In heaving a vessel, lightness of weight would count for a great deal. This accounts for the throwing over of grain and anchors.

40. Loosing the bands of the rudders. Ancient ships had two rudders, one on each quarter. These had been lifted out of the water when the anchors were cast. They are now unshipped and let down into the water again.

41. Lundy says (Cambridge Bible): "The little island of Salomon's Islands with the Maltese coast near Saint Paul's Bay exactly in a position as here described, from the sea it appears as though the land were continuous, and the current between the island and the mainland (of Malta) is only seen on water approach. This current has raised a mudbank where its force is broken by the op-

2. Barbarians—Not necessarily uncivilized, but, in the original sense, a people neither Greek nor Roman. They probably spoke a Phoenician dialect, as most of the inhabitants of Malta came from Carthage.

Received us all—Into their dwellings, is of course, implied.

3. Paul had gathered a bundle of sticks—Notice all through this story the apostle's active participation in all that concerned his comrades.

A viper—It is said vipers have disappeared from the island of Malta, but the density of the population and the clearing away of forests are sufficient to account for the fact. The creature had been numbed by the cold, and now, feeling the heat, glided forth from the fagots.

6. Swollen, or fallen down dead suddenly—This would have been the effect, apparently in a brief time, if the serpent was, as has been conjectured, the same as the English asp.

Said that he was a god—Compare the events at Lystra (Acts 14. 11), like this, illustrating the popular fickleness of judgment.

7. The chief man . . . Publius—Inscriptions show that "Protos" (the first man) is the correct technical title. Malta was part of the province of Sicily, of whose praetor Publius was legate. Tradition says he was the first bishop of Malta, and afterward became bishop of Athens.

8, 9. Sick of fever and dysentery—Technical description such as Luke, a physician, would be likely to use. This, and the statement that the rest also that had diseases came and were cured, is to be received as the testimony of an expert medical eyewitness. Paul remained here three months.

10. Honors—Doubtless in the form of money and such things as travelers would need, after losing all they had by shipwreck.

CAT AS AN INCENDIARY.

A remarkable discovery was made by a party of salvage firemen engaged in a cotton warehouse which on a recent Sunday night was the scene of a slight outbreak of fire, says the London Standard. While a search was being made among the debris it was noticed that several bricks had been removed from the wall, and a further examination revealed a live cat with a long string attached to its tail, upon which were the remains of some charred material that had evidently been saturated with inflammable liquid. The theory of the police is that the cat was deliberately sent into the warehouse, where the cotton was stored, the artificial tail having been lighted beforehand. The discovery confirms the police in the belief that the numerous cotton fires of the past few months have been the work of incendiaries, for the discovery of whom they have offered a reward of £300.

The most-talked-of Queen in Europe of late—Her Majesty of Holland—possesses one of the loveliest and most delicate complexions in Europe. This she attributes not so much to "make-ups" as to simple diet and open-air life. At the same time she makes a daily practice of using in her bath a pint of the finest essence of Cologne, the purity of which Queen Wilhelmina tests herself over the lamp upon which her morning chocolate has been prepared. She is a great believer, too, in the merits of glycerine and rose-water, with which she treats not only her face, but also her arms and shoulders.

Into the water she introduces an extract made from forest herbs, which she says is the best tonic for the skin she has yet discovered, and, judging by the beautiful complexion which Carmen Sylva, in spite of her sixty-six years, still retains, her praise of the merits of this extract is in no way exaggerated.

AUSTRALIA'S CAPITAL.

New South Wales Offers Site to Federal Government.

The New South Wales Legislative Assembly has agreed to offer to the Commonwealth, for the purpose of forming the Federal capital there, 800 square miles of the Yass-Canberra district, with the control of the rivers for water supply over an additional 510 square miles; also for the purpose of access to the sea, two square miles at Jervis Bay, with the right to construct a railway thereto, and further permission to connect with the Goulbourn-Cooma State Railway.

Mr. Wade, the New South Wales Prime Minister, in moving the resolution, made it clear that the New South Wales Government was willing to afford every possible facility for the early establishment of the Federal capital.

The site of the new Federal capital was decided upon by the Commonwealth Parliament nearly a year ago. The Yass-Canberra district lies nearly 200 miles to the southwest of Sydney, complying with the requirement of the Commonwealth Constitution that it shall be in the State of New South Wales, and be distant not less than 100 miles from Sydney. It is also provided in the act that the capital shall be within territory of an area not less than 100 square miles, to be vested in the Commonwealth. Yass, which is situated on the river of that name, is connected with Sydney by the Great Southern Railway, and is a growing town, with a population of between 2,000 and 3,000. Canberra is the name of a small place connected with Yass by coach.

Her—"Well, she says it is 26—so it must be the age of deception."

Layer Cake.—Sift together in your mixing bowl one cupful of sugar, two cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of cream tartar, one-half teaspoonful of soda, break one egg in teacup and fill with sweet milk; pour in centre of mixing bowl, add three tablespoonfuls melted butter, beat thoroughly, bake in three layers.

Feather Cake.—Cream one cupful of sugar and one tablespoonful of butter, then add one to two teaspoonfuls of vanilla, then one cup of milk, and one egg beaten into a foam. Stir two scant cupfuls of well sifted flour into which has been added two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake in shallow pans and quick oven. Bake in layers.

PRESERVING.

Grape Jelly "A la Mode."—When making your grape jelly, if possible make a batch of purple grapes and one of green grapes at the same time. Fill the tumblers half full of the purple grape jelly first, when this has cooled pour the green grape jelly on that already in the tumblers. The result will be a beautiful jelly of two shades or red.

Uncooked Catsup—Chop fine one-half peck ripe tomatoes, two heads of celery, and two red peppers. Add one cupful of brown sugar, one-half cupful salt, one tablespoon each black pepper, cloves, and cinnamon, two tablespoonfuls mustard, one cupful of grated horseradish, one quart vinegar. Mix and bottle.

Canned Peppers.—Cut the stem end from sweet red peppers and with a pair of shears cut the peppers around and around in a long ribbon one-fourth of an inch thick. Cover with boiling water to which has been added salt in the proportion of one tablespoonful to a quart of water, and let them stand over night. Drain in a colander and pour over them enough cold water to freshen them, and put them in a glass fruit jar. For each quart of the peppers heat until boiling one and a half cupfuls of vinegar, one cupful of sugar, and a small piece of cinnamon stick. Pour this over the peppers and seal while hot. They make a fine garnish for salads and meats; also nice for sandwiches.

CLEANING.

Dry Cleaning.—Place a tin lard can containing gasoline in the centre of a tub and pour hot water around it to heat it. Put in garments and cover with flat lid. Let soak twenty to thirty minutes, then shake up and down several times good. Use soap if soiled. Hang in the air.

Lace and Net.—For lace curtains, net waists, and thin silks stir flour into cold gasoline until like thin starch and rinse the above mentioned articles after they have been cleaned. They will look like new. All cleaning should be done in the open air.

Collars.—To cleanse the collars of garments dissolve one part salt in four of alcohol, apply with a sponge, and rub well.

White Serge.—To clean white serge use a decoction of soapwort roots. The gown when washed will be white and soft to the touch. Soap hardens stuff goods and makes them yellow.

Felt Hats.—Felt hats may be cleaned by dipping a hard brush which has short hairs into spirits of ammonia. Rub well until the grease disappears.

Cleaning Carpets.—To clean carpets take one-half bar of white soap, one-half pound of powdered borax, one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Shave soap fine, put in four gallons of soft water, heat until dissolved, then let cool and it is ready for use.

To Wash Chiffon.—Chiffon should be washed in soap lather by carefully rolling and pressing between the hands, then rinsed in clean water and stiffened in gum water, one tablespoonful to a quarter of a pint of water. Roll in a cloth to absorb some of the moisture, but it must not be too dry when it is ironed. To iron chiffon it must be placed on the table wrong side up and ironed along the selvedge, as ironing across would displace the fibres and destroy the appearance of the delicate fabric. When the chiffon is being ironed it ought to be held up in front of the iron to remove crinkles that are produced by washing and to make it quite even and smooth.

GINGERBREAD.

Kentucky Gingerbread.—Cream together one cupful of butter and one and a half cupfuls of New Orleans sugar. Add four eggs beaten light, one and one-half cupfuls of New Orleans molasses, one cupful of buttermilk to which one teaspoonful of soda has been added, four cupfuls of flour, and two level tablespoonfuls of ground ginger. Bake in a shallow pan, in a moderately hot oven.

Ginger Cake.—One egg, one-half cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter, one teaspoonful of ginger, one-quarter teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half cupful of sour milk, a level teaspoonful of soda, one-half cupful each of New Orleans and Porto Rico molasses, two cupfuls of sifted flour. Mix the egg, sugar, and butter till light, then add the ginger, cinnamon, and molasses; dissolve the soda in the sour milk and add that; then add the flour, mixing all well together. Bake in a moderate oven.

Poor Man's Gingerbread.—Beat one egg, one cupful of sour cream, one cupful New Orleans molasses, one teaspoonful of ginger, one of salt, and one of soda. Mix well together; add one and three-fourths cupfuls of flour; beat well. Bake in a shallow tin and frost.

USEFUL HINTS.

Rice is used to advantage as a border for creamed meats and vegetables.

Put a bit of camphor away with silver not in use; it will prevent tarnishing.

Hard boiled eggs are suitable accompaniments for boiled fish or molded spinach.

When food cooking starts to burn, place at once in pan of cold water; it will remove all scorched taste.

To clarify fat, after frying throw in a few slices of raw potato, and simmer all for a few minutes.

Boiled or fried potatoes make an excellent garnish for fish, with the addition of parsley and lemon.

To skin sardines, dip each into boiling water, which will loosen the skin, and permit of its easy removal.

When mixing starch, the addition of a few drops of turpentine will give a fine gloss to collars and cuffs.

To make a green mayonnaise for a vegetable salad, add scalded chopped parsley to ordinary salad dressing.

MAN'S GREAT ENDURANCE

FROM THE TROPICS TO NORTH AND SOUTH POLES.

His Wonderful Adaptability to the Various and Changing Conditions.

It is difficult to put limits to the power of physical endurance possessed by the human body. In circumstances that might well be expected to prove fatal men have survived, and sometimes with wonderfully little impairment of health and that only of a temporary nature. None of the lower animals can approach man in the adaptability which he thus exhibits to various and changing conditions. To-day there is much talk of polar explorations and to-morrow the traveller who most focusses public attention will perchance have escaped from equatorial furnaces, says the London Lancet. Man has braved alike the hottest parts of the tropics and the extremest cold of either pole; he has traversed the arid deserts and the malarious swamps. He has survived deprivation of food to a point which is absolutely surprising—for weeks if he has been able to obtain water, and even if deprived of water also his life has lasted for many days.

The limits of such endurance are influenced by the measure of passivity. The most striking results have been obtained when no exertion has been needed for the preservation of life, as in the case of those who have been entombed in mines or under avalanches, but there are where life has been preserved in spite of extreme scarcity of food and water while all the time great physical exertions have been necessarily made. The voluntary sufferings of the anchorites in the earlier centuries of the Christian era excite our surprise not only because of the fanaticism which dictated the sacrifice but even more because of the power of endurance which enabled the holy man to survive his miseries.

Simon Stylites, who for more than thirty years of the fifth century lived on the summit of a stone column sixty feet high, just not starving himself and exposed day and night, summer and winter, to the inclemencies of the seasons, is the best known among hundreds of such self-torturers, while he had many imitators, and a form of rivalry existed in the devising of unpleasant modes of dispensing with the ordinary comforts of life and adding to the discomforts.

The practice has died out for the most part from the Christian Church, but in India even at the present day may be seen examples of the self-infliction of tortures for the purpose of acquiring merit, though it must be explained that the pain really felt by the fakir is probably not always so great as it appears. This indeed is the case with all spontaneous martyrs. The sufferings, great though they may be, are voluntary, and at any moment the victim, if he may so be called, can return to the usual conditions, and pain is always more easily borne when the sufferer can put an end to it when he pleases.

In many cases, however, the powers of physical endurance are ling them to realize the horrors of the great expedition led by Sir John Franklin toward the north pole sixty years before. We have not indeed, and never shall have, the full account of that story, but we can piece together the fragments which have been brought to light—the leaving the ships, which had been fixed in the ice eighteen months, and the long, weary march overland of the 105 who then survived. They had insufficient food, they had spent three winters in the regions of snow and ice, and the additional exertion of dragging heavily laden sledges proved too much.

ONE BY ONE THEY DIED

On the way, so that ultimately not one survived of the 134 officers and men who had left England. The zeal, energy and perseverance they displayed are beyond all praise, and the physical endurance exhibited almost passes belief.

What qualities are of the chief value in enabling men to withstand excesses of heat and cold, shortage of food and excessive physical exertion? In the first place it is clear that mere muscular strength has but little influence, and from a consideration of many cases we are led to the conclusion that that type of man who is generally described as "wiry" is probably the best suited for any expedition where hardships are likely to be encountered. Simplicity in diet and more or less complete abstinence from alcohol seem also to be desiderata.

Above all in significance comes experience; a personal knowledge of the general conditions which are to be met with and a careful arrangement of the plan, with provision of a base supply, are also of the utmost importance. These things do away to a great extent with the feeling that the ordeal of pain to be endured is an indefinite one; they give to the expedition the cheer that comes of believing that by a certain time and in a certain place all will be well. There are many parts of the world which still appear as blanks on the map, and the restless energy of the human race will not be content till these are filled.

Utilitarians may raise the question of the value of these expeditions, but in their stimulating effect on the ideas and feeling of the people, quite apart from the commercial value of any discoveries, there is, it seems to us, a return for the exertions and privations of explorers. Consideration of what man can endure gives us a just pride in the powers of the well kept body and a pleasant mistrust in the accuracy of many of the screeds about physical degeneration.

RACEHORSES AS MAN EATERS

Famous Thoroughbreds That Are Hard to Control.

Famous racehorses, like famous people, are often very eccentric in their behavior, and there have been many cases of celebrated animals who have turned savage, and had to be shot through trying to eat their jockeys, says Pearson's Weekly.

Otto Madden, the famous jockey who only a few seasons ago won the Derby on the 100 to 1 chance Jeddah, was violently savaged by a horse at Brighton races. He was riding Centre down to the post for the Worthing Plate when a horse called Marigold IV. overtook him,

About the Farm

FALL CALVES.

Fall calves can be more profitably raised than those dropped in the spring, according to reports from the Irish Department of Agriculture. When it is considered that the mortality of calves is greater in summer than in winter the figures for the South of Ireland being 9 per cent. and 0.5 per cent. respectively, a substantial inducement is held out to breed more fall calves. This success with winter-raised calves may not be duplicated in this county yet it is common observation that flies and heat do the spring calves a lot of damage, and its frequent neglect during the first winter just after weaning proves a distinct loss to its feeders. Fall calves suffer less from flies and make good use of the grass, suffering little inconvenience from the withdrawal of milk in the spring. During their first winter, they have the support of the milk and by the next winter they can shift for themselves far better than can the freshly weaned spring calf.

Now that far-sighted dairymen are becoming impressed with the improvement in quality of their herds to be secured by saving home-bred heifers, the subject of winter calf-raising is engaging their attention. Winter high prices for milk and its products induce increasing numbers of dairymen to freshen their cows in the fall, as they have found that the silo goes far toward reducing the cost of production so as to leave much of the extra milk receipts for profit.

Winter-raised calves are a success and less costly than those nursed on grass-made milk. Their production fits in well with the plans of dairymen who are alive at once to the profits from winter dairying with the aid of a silo, the difficulty of buying springers of good quality and the certain increase in milking capacity in herds replenished by well-sired home-grown heifers.—Breeders Gazette.

HENS THAT EAT EGGS.

The Michigan Poultry Breeder says that at this period of the year some of the hens will be guilty of eating their eggs, and it is one of the most annoying vices that can exist in a flock. It is a habit that is acquired, one hen becoming addicted to it and teaching the others. Hens will never eat their eggs, however, unless induced to do so from some cause. If fresh shells are given them or an egg becomes broken, they learn that they have a source of food, and take advantage of their opportunity.

The vice cannot be cured, that is, if the hens once begin to eat eggs they will always do so if they can. The best remedy, however, is to get rid of them; begin with a new flock. By arranging the nests egg-eating may be sometimes prevented, but does not destroy the desire. Get a soap box with a top and compel the hen to go into the box for a nest at the end, so as to compel her to walk in. The box should be just large enough for her to sit in, and not stand up comfortably. Fix the nest ten inches from the floor

To remove paint from linens rub with turpentine, then clean with French chalk dampened with alcohol.

When hashing cold meat add a little chopped parsley. It will improve both the taste and appearance.

Potatoes cooked in their skins are beautifully dry and floury if a small piece be cut off one end to allow the steam to escape in cooking.

A Swedish cook says sprinkle a little white sugar over sponge cake before baking it. It will come out of the oven with a dainty crust over the top.

A fowl should be wrapped in a floured cloth and be allowed to simmer very gently for an hour and a half, when it will be both tender and white.

When a knife has been used to cut onions wipe with a damp cloth and rub briskly with coarse salt. The objectionable smell will then entirely disappear.

Never serve greasy soup. If there is any fat on it when heated, take it off by laying pieces of kitchen paper on the surface; this will quickly absorb the grease.

Green peppers are good served with boiled rice in the following fashion: Cut them up and boil until tender. Season with salt, pepper and butter, and turn over the rice.

Carpets in rooms which are seldom used are apt to be attacked by moths. Salt sprinkled round the edges and well under the carpet before it is put down will generally prevent their ravages.

When making sauce set the butter in the stewpan first, and when bubbling hot add the flour. Stir both together for a few minutes, and then add the water, milk, or stock, and stir again till it boils.

Persons who are accustomed to use tea leaves for sweeping their carpets and find they leave stains will do well to employ fresh-cut grass instead. It is better than the tea leaves, and gives a brighter and fresher look.

When the jelly is put into the kettle to boil, drop into the kettle a small agate marble such as the children use to play with. This marble will keep in constant motion in the bottom of the kettle while the jelly is cooking and prevent burning.

Tablecloths generally begin to wear first where the folds come. To change the position of the folds is, therefore to prolong the life of the cloth. It is easily done by taking a few inches off one side and one end of the cloth, and hemming it again.

Some housekeepers put a peeled onion inside a fowl that is to be kept for any length of time. This absorbs germs that would otherwise infect the meat. Sliced onions or a bag of charcoal placed near meat of any kind has the same effect.

THE ANNALS OF THE SEA

contain innumerable instances where the survivors of wrecks have floated about for many days and even weeks exposed to a tropical sun and to the violence of storms, provided with only small quantities of food and water, rejoicing at being able to feast on a few barnacles found on floating timber or at catching a few drops of water from a passing shower.

Explorers too often undergo frightful exertions in making their way into the unknown parts of the earth, where they are exposed to conditions of life which it would be thought impossible for the physique to sustain, as well as to want of food or water. The records of the exploration of the interior of Australia contain many instances of extreme privation, none perhaps more striking than the well known expedition of Burke and Wills, although here both of the explorers died from starvation. Africa too has had its quota of brave explorers who suffered countless hardships in making their way through unknown lands, and of these Mungo Park surely deserves to be specially named.

Of all the parts of the world, however, the polar regions are pre-eminently trying. Those who endeavor to penetrate the Arctic solitudes find the conditions more unfavorable to life than in any other region, and it is hard to imagine a greater test of the endurance of the human body than a prolonged stay in these high altitudes. Not only are all the comforts of civilization wanting, but many of those things which are properly looked upon as necessities. Chief among these is warmth, for unless the body maintains its temperature all vital processes are impossible. For keeping the necessary temperature fire and are indispensable, and these in a country where fuel is almost unobtainable and where every ounce of baggage adds to the extreme difficulties of transport.

Food, again, is very scarce, a few bears and birds, and where there is open water some seals and fish can be obtained, but practically the whole of the food has to be taken with the explorer; and the diet has to be generous in order to keep up the heat forming powers of the body. Water, or rather melted snow or ice, is indeed procurable, but it has often been shown that melted snow has a tendency to produce very harmful symptoms. It is clear that the lot of an Arctic or Antarctic explorer in many ways reaches the limits of human endurance, while the trials are not only prolonged but indefinite in their duration, yet the enthusiasm and thoroughness with which these expeditions are undertaken and carried through are in the highest degree praiseworthy.

The great cold, the violence of the wind and the difficulties of exploring in such conditions must have impressed all readers, enabling

Otto Madden, the famous jockey who only a few seasons ago won the Derby on the 100 to 1 chance Jeddah, was violently savaged by a horse at Brighton races. He was riding Centre down to the post for the Worthing Plate when a horse called Marigold IV. overtook him, dragged him out of the saddle by the shoulder and seizing him by the throat shook him as a terrier shakes a rat.

The jockey of Marigold IV., who had himself been unseated, used his whip freely on the brute's head to make him release Madden, and other jockeys coming to his assistance Marigold IV. was eventually beaten off. Madden returned to the paddock bleeding from a wound on the throat which had to have several stitches put into it, and it was some time before he was able to ride again.

Sweet Sounds, in spite of his name, was an irredeemable savage. One morning at exercise his girths came undone; he got his boy off and rushed at him like a lion, the result to the unlucky lad being a month in the hospital.

Good Morning was another of the ugly tempered sort. Once he bit his leading rein clean through with one vicious snap, caught hold of his attendant and shook him ferociously.

Ladas, another famous racehorse, was perfectly quiet under ordinary circumstances, but for some reason he had a great dislike for ladies and would "go for them" if any members of the fair sex approached the paddock.

Diamond Jubilee was another famous horse that gave a good deal of trouble to its trainer owing to the violence of its likes and dislikes. He hated Mornington Cannon, the famous jockey, and on one occasion flew at him while exercising on Newmarket Heath, knocking him flying, and "Morny" would most certainly have been killed if assistance had not been at hand.

Years afterward Cannon visited his stable, and the horse still remembered his old grudge and attempted to "go for him" again directly he heard his old jockey's voice.

An old Irish steeplechase horse called Tornado, who was well known at one time, was a perfectly good tempered horse, but he had a hatred of bicycles, and whenever he saw one he would try to put his forelegs through the wheels. For what reason nobody ever knew, for he never seemed to be afraid of them.

Some famous horses, who run races with obvious enjoyment have a rooted objection to being saddled and will roll and lie on their backs when the time comes to prepare for the fray. Others throw themselves into an absolute state of frenzy if they feel the slightest drop of rain, while many others who are perfectly normal in other respects will only allow themselves to be groomed or fed by the same individual.

Prince of Tyre used to amuse himself by walking round and round his box on his hind legs. He would scrape all his bedding into a heap in the centre of the floor and then would slowly pound it to chaff.

All sorts of ways were tried to break him of the habit, and eventually he found solace in the company of an old black cat.

The box should be just large enough for her to sit in, and not stand up comfortably. Fix the nest ten inches from the floor or so she cannot stand on the floor and eat the egg out of the box. If she cannot stand in the box she will not attempt to eat the egg when on the nest.

FAST BEFORE KILLING.

A surprisingly large quantity of poultry coming to market is not fasted before killing and often arrives with crops full of food and protruding. This distended crop is decidedly unsightly and perceptibly lowers the appearance of the birds. Why will not people learn that a bird's crop gorged with food is a handicap to its sale? More-over it distinctly lowers the quality of the flesh as well. It has been demonstrated that the flesh of poultry that fasts for from twenty-four to thirty-six hours before killing is more delicate of flavor and of better keeping quality than those which have food in process of digestion at time of killing. The digestive process carries with it certain ferments that affect the flavor of the flesh.

SPRING OR FALL CALVES.

The question as to whether the calf should come in the fall or in the spring is to be determined by the comparative profit of the summer's or winter's market. The winter's milk cost more money, but it brings more. It costs more in feed, in shelter, and about the same in labor, and the relative price of milk fed must determine whether the calf shall come in the fall or in the spring. As farmers settle down to dairying as a business they will more and more aim to make it an all-the-year-round business, and hence will have calves coming all the year around, with a greater proportion of fall calves than heretofore. This will give creameries permanent work which is essential to their profit, and will bring dairying down more and more to a legitimate and profitable business all the year around.

are indispensable, and these in a country where fuel is almost unobtainable and where every ounce of baggage adds to the extreme difficulties of transport.

Food, again, is very scarce, a few bears and birds, and where there is open water some seals and fish can be obtained, but practically the whole of the food has to be taken with the explorer; and the diet has to be generous in order to keep up the heat forming powers of the body. Water, or rather melted snow or ice, is indeed procurable, but it has often been shown that melted snow has a tendency to produce very harmful symptoms. It is clear that the lot of an Arctic or Antarctic explorer in many ways reaches the limits of human endurance, while the trials are not only prolonged but indefinite in their duration, yet the enthusiasm and thoroughness with which these expeditions are undertaken and carried through are in the highest degree praiseworthy.

The great cold, the violence of the wind and the difficulties of exploring in such conditions must have impressed all readers, enabling Otto Madden, the famous jockey who only a few seasons ago won the Derby on the 100 to 1 chance Jeddah, was violently savaged by a horse at Brighton races. He was riding Centre down to the post for the Worthing Plate when a horse called Marigold IV. overtook him, dragged him out of the saddle by the shoulder and seizing him by the throat shook him as a terrier shakes a rat.

The jockey of Marigold IV., who had himself been unseated, used his whip freely on the brute's head to make him release Madden, and other jockeys coming to his assistance Marigold IV. was eventually beaten off. Madden returned to the paddock bleeding from a wound on the throat which had to have several stitches put into it, and it was some time before he was able to ride again.

Sweet Sounds, in spite of his name, was an irreclaimable savage. One morning at exercise his girths came undone; he got his boy off and rushed at him like a lion, the result to the unlucky lad being a month in the hospital.

Good Morning was another of the ugly tempered sort. Once he bit his leading rein clean through with one vicious snap, caught hold of his attendant and shook him ferociously.

Ladas, another famous racehorse, was perfectly quiet under ordinary circumstances, but for some reason he had a great dislike for ladies and would "go for them" if any members of the fair sex approached the paddock.

Diamond Jubilee was another famous horse that gave a good deal of trouble to its trainer owing to the violence of its likes and dislikes. He hated Mornington Cannon, the famous jockey, and on one occasion flew at him while exercising on Newmarket Heath, knocking him flying, and "Merny" would most certainly have been killed if assistance had not been at hand.

Years afterward Cannon visited his stable, and the horse still remembered his old grudge and attempted to "go for him" again directly he heard his old jockey's voice.

An old Irish steeplechase horse called Tornado, who was well known at one time, was a perfectly good tempered horse, but he had a hatred of bicycles, and whenever he saw one he would try to put his foreleg through the wheels. For what reason nobody ever knew, for he never seemed to be afraid of them.

Some famous horses, who run races with obvious enjoyment have a rooted objection to being saddled and will roll and lie on their backs when the time comes to prepare for the fray. Others throw themselves into an absolute state of frenzy if they feel the slightest drop of rain, while many others who are perfectly normal in other respects will only allow themselves to be groomed or fed by the same individual.

Prince of Tyre used to amuse himself by walking round and round his box on his hind legs. He would scrape all his bedding into a heap in the centre of the floor and then would slowly pound it to chaff.

All sorts of ways were tried to break him of the habit, and eventually he found solace in the company of an old black cat.

Idleness is the master key to poverty.

does not destroy the desire. Get a soap box with a top and compel the hen to go into the box for a nest at the end, so as to compel her to walk in. The box should be just large enough for her to sit in, and not stand up comfortably. Fix the nest ten inches from the floor or so she cannot stand on the floor and eat the egg out of the box. If she cannot stand in the box she will not attempt to eat the egg when on the nest.

FAST BEFORE KILLING.

A surprisingly large quantity of poultry coming to market is not fasted before killing and often arrives with crops full of food and protruding. This distended crop is decidedly unsightly and perceptibly lowers the appearance of the birds. Why will not people learn that a bird's crop gorged with food is a handicap to its sale? Moreover it distinctly lowers the quality of the flesh as well. It has been demonstrated that the flesh of poultry that fasts for from twenty-four to thirty-six hours before killing is more delicate of flavor and of better keeping quality than those which have food in process of digestion at time of killing. The digestive process carries with it certain ferments that affect the flavor of the flesh.

SPRING OR FALL CALVES.

The question as to whether the calf should come in the fall or in the spring is to be determined by the comparative profit of the summer's or winter's market. The winter's milk cost more money, but it brings more. It costs more in feed, in shelter, and about the same in labor, and the relative price of milk fed must determine whether the calf shall come in the fall or in the spring. As farmers settle down to dairying as a business they will more and more aim to make it an all-the-year-round business, and hence will have calves coming all the year around, with a greater proportion of fall calves than heretofore. This will give creameries permanent work which is essential to their profit, and will bring dairying down more and more to a legitimate and profitable business all the year around.

OR, WAITING THROUGH WEARY YEARS.

CHAPTER I.

"Happy? Yes; always quite happy; does she not look so? And always of course quite harmless," said the doctor in answer to my question, regarding a patient, whose rooms we had just left.

I was on a visit of inspection to the Good Samaritan Lunatic Asylum, and young Dr. Bennett Abbott was my guide through the institution. He was the third assistant surgeon there, a good looking and good hearted fellow, with face and voice full of kindly sympathy, and he was loved and trusted by nearly all his patients.

We had made the round of the wards, and done homage to all the self-fancied kings and queens, popes and heroes, and had humorously the "peculiar whim" of each monomaniac, when at length, at the end of a long gallery, that looked out upon the shrubberies and upon the sea beyond, we came to the door of a cell which the doctor opened, by turning the handle, for it was not locked.

And now came a strange sweet experience. A sphere of infinite peace seemed to envelope me, the moment I crossed the threshold of that little room.

Its one window looked out upon the evergreen shrubberies and beyond upon the open sea, over which was shining the clear morning sun.

A large white china vase of rare exotics sat upon the window sill and filled the room with rich aroma.

The room itself was bare enough, but beautifully clean, with white-washed wall, waxed pine floor, and white draped bed.

On a chair by the window sat a young woman who immediately drew my attention, as the most fragile and spirituelle being I had ever seen or imagined. Her form, times, I see her home there — a palace where walls are like mother of pearl, with windows of crystal and doors of silver, with gardens of celestial fruit and flowers all round, and—" her voice, as she spoke, had gradually sunk to whispers, and soon became inarticulate, flowing in melodious, undistinguishable notes.

We sat in silence listening to her as we would have listened to the murmuring of a brook, or to the sighing of a breeze, until at last her voice ceased, and she sat with folded hands and wide open eyes, gazing far out over the sunlit waters, yet seeming to see nothing.

"We had better go now, if you please," said the doctor.

We both arose to leave the room. "Good-bye, Marie," he said cheerfully, laying his hand upon her head.

His voice and touch aroused her from her reverie.

"Good-bye, doctor," she answered, but her voice sounded as if it came from afar, or like the distant echo of her voice.

I held out my hand in silence, for somehow I fell into Marie's favorite mute way of communicating.

She smiled upon me with her heavenly smile, and so filled my soul with peace as we left her presence.

In the hall outside I said to the doctor—

"Here is at least one happy inmate. Is she always so?"

And he answered in the words with which this story opened.

"She interests me more than any one I have ever seen," I added.

"I do not wonder. Hers is the strangest case I ever met with," he answered.

"What brought her here?"

"Mania, of course. Her mania being that she is constantly at-

CHAPTER II.

That night I went into the drawing-room, as by appointment, to hear the story of Marie Serafinne from the lips of the young doctor.

Dr. Hamilton, the surgeon in charge, was making his last evening tour of inspection through the asylum, a duty that would occupy him for two or three hours. My cousin Eleanor, his wife, was in her nursery, seeing her children put to bed, and soothing her teething baby—duties that would employ her for an indefinite portion of the evening.

So that I was alone in the drawing-room, with the prospect of remaining so, until Doctor Abbott should come in and join me.

It was an old-fashioned, long, low-ceiled room in an old-fashioned country house, adjoining which the new asylum had been built, when the old manor was purchased by the State for the purpose.

The doctor preferred the old house to any part of the new building, and so, with his family, he now occupied it.

I walked up and down the long, low-ceiled room, now looking from the back window out upon the darkening wintry sky, and sea, over which heavy black clouds were rising; and now pausing before the enormous wood-fire that was roaring in the broad old fire-place, and that the keenness of the sea air made it absolutely necessary even in this early winter weather.

A storm was rising, heavy clouds blackened over the sea, and the wind moaned around the house.

I closed the shutters and turned from the window for the last time, and went and sat down in a low chair before the fire, with my feet upon the iron fender.

I had sat there but a few minutes when the young doctor turned the knob of the door, opened it, and quietly entered.

"I am true to my appointment, Mrs. Middleton," he said as he drew a chair to one side of the fire and sat down.

I thanked him, and remarked that a heavy storm was coming up.

"That," he said, "would be a fit and proper accompaniment to the wild story I have to tell."

And then and there, as we sat by the great wood-fire in the old manor-house amid storm and darkness, howling wind and beating rain, he told me the weird story of Marie Serafinne, first again reminding me that all which was supernatural and incredible in the narrative, I might, if I pleased, ascribe to the hallucination of the heroine. I tell the story as I heard it.

GLORIOUS PIG STICKING.

An East Indian Sport Full of Thrills and Danger.

Of all sports the most exciting, the most wildly exhilarating, says a writer in Bally's Magazine, is surely pig sticking. While waiting for the beaters to come up when driving for deer or bison or tiger, the pulses gallop, time flies and excitement quivers in every nerve and muscle, but it is nothing to the tension attendant on the wait at the edge of the jungle for the break of the grey boar as he comes out, usually in a reluctant, surly manner, and proceeds to cross the open towards the next bit of cover.

Then the gathering up of your reins and the fresh grasp of your spear as you look with straining eyes—now in the direction of the

FADS OF MURDERERS.

Their Thoughts Turn Mostly Towards Food.

Oscar Slater who murdered Miss Gilchrist in her Glasgow flat, proved himself a typical dandy even in the condemned cell, and also a stickler for the proprieties. He insisted, for instance, from the very beginning, in being called "Mr." Slater, and each morning he changed his linen, varied his neckwear, and demanded polished boots.

Similar exhibitions of strutting, peacock vanity are not uncommon on the part of men doomed to die on the gallows. Wainwright, on the day preceding his execution, absolutely refused to dress because his clean linen had not arrived from the laundry, and a new shirt and collar had to be bought for him. When the evening arrived—his last on earth—he craved a smoke. A pipe and tobacco were brought to him, but he rejected them with disdain. He would have a cigar. And he got it.

Lefroy, who murdered poor old Mr. Gold in a railway carriage on the way to Brighton, wore an evening dress suit during the whole of the period that elapsed between his condemnation and his execution. Also he was greatly upset at the refusal of the authorities to allow him to be hanged in a new silk hat presented to him in court.

As a rule, however, the thoughts of the condemned turn mostly towards food. Rush, the Stansfield Hall murderer, was an educated man. "I want my slippers and the Times" were his first words on returning to gaol after his conviction. But a little later he called for pen and paper, and wrote out an order for his next day's dinner, "Pig and plenty of apple sauce."

In those days it was the custom to give capital convicts whatever they asked for in the way of food. But the rule was abolished soon afterwards, one of the first delinquents to come under the new regulations being a certain Jeffrey, who murdered his six-year-old child by hanging him in a cellar in Seven Dials. He was unaware of the alteration, and called for a roast duck directly he entered the condemned cell, and when it was refused him he behaved so violently that he had to be put in a strait-jacket—Pearson's Weekly.

ADVICE FROM A MOTHER TO ALL OTHER MOTHERS

The young mother—the inexperienced mother—is always glad to get the advice of the more experienced in the care of her little one. Thousands of mothers have emphatically said that there is no medicine equal to Baby's Own Tablets for keeping little ones well, or restoring health if illness comes suddenly. The young mother can safely follow the lead of these others. Mrs. John Shortill, Georgetown, Ont., says:—"I would not be a day without Baby's Own Tablets in the house. I believe they saved my youngest child's life. At the age of three months she cried all the time with indigestion. Our doctor did all he could for her, but did not seem to help her. Then I got Baby's Own Tablets and they worked a wonderful change. They seemed to tone the stomach, moved the bowels regularly, and she has ever since been a healthy child. exotics sat upon the window sill and filled the room with rich aroma.

The room itself was bare enough, but beautifully clean, with white-washed wall, waxed pine floor, and white draped bed.

On a chair by the window sat a young woman who immediately drew my attention, as the most fragile and spirituelle being I had ever seen or imagined. Her form, clothed in a flowing white wrapper, was so attenuated that the wonder was how it still had power to hold the soul within it.

Her face—how shall I portray it? For it seemed the face of a spirit! Bright golden brown hair curled around her broad forehead and shapely head, and fell down behind upon her graceful shoulders. Her eyes were very large, light blue, soft and clear and shaded by long lashes. Her other features were small and regular. Her complexion was singularly pure white, and transparent like very thin alabaster. But from those light blue eyes and from that wan, spiritual face, beamed a calm and radiant peace, ineffable and indescribable. "Here is a friend come to see you, Marie," said the young doctor.

She looked at me and held out her little transparent white hand. She did not speak a word, but her whole delicate face lightened and softened as she smiled on me with a smile that reached my heart and seemed to communicate to me her own heavenly peace.

I sat down beside her. And the young doctor took the third and only remaining chair in the room. "You have beautiful flowers here," I said, referring to the rich exotics.

Again her fair, wan face brightened and softened with that wonderful smile; she did not speak. Indeed speech did not seem to be her mode of communicating ideas.

"Is she mute?" I inquired in a low tone, of the young doctor.

"Oh, no! no! indeed!" he answered. Then turning to his patient he said—"Marie, my dear, tell the lady about your flowers. Tell her who sends them to you, Marie."

"My child," she answered in tone of ineffable tenderness. "I never heard a human voice so soft, so liquid, so aerial. These two words, 'my child,' sounded like two notes of an Aeolian harp."

"She is a good child to send you such rich flowers," I said.

"Yes," she answered dreamily. "She is my angel."

"Where does she live, Marie?" I next enquired.

She opened her light blue eyes so wide that they seemed to blaze with a soft fire as she answered—

"Why, don't you know! in Heaven! When I shut my eyes some-

"Here is at least one happy inmate. Is she always so?"

And he answered in the words with which this story opened.

"She interests me more than any one I have ever seen," I added.

"I do not wonder. Hers is the strangest case I ever met with," he answered.

"What brought her here?"

"Mania, of course. Her mania being that she is constantly attended and helped by the spirit of her child, who prompts, in others, all the kindness that is shown her, causing them to send her flowers for instance, and who opens to her the gates of Paradise, giving her glimpses of the glory within."

"Was it the loss of her child that turned her brain?"

The doctor paused for a moment, his fine face clouded over, and then in a deep whisper, he answered gravely:

"She was accused of having murdered her child."

I started with a half suppressed scream, and shrank back with horror.

There was silence between us for a moment, and then I recovered myself and exclaimed with irrepressible indignation—

"It is impossible! She, never, no, not even in a paroxysm of insanity, could have committed such a crime."

"It is generally believed that she did, however—but, of course, in a fit of desperation."

"I do not believe it!" I repeated with all the earnestness of my soul.

"Do you remember," enquired the doctor, as we walked down the long passage together—"Do you remember the case of that Marie Serafinne, who was tried at Pine Cliffs, in this State, for infanticide some years ago?"

"I remember hearing and reading of it, yes."

"Well, the woman we have just left is that very Marie Serafinne."

I gazed at the speaker in mute astonishment for the space of a minute, and then broke silence by exclaiming incredulously:

"What! why that trial took place at least fourteen years ago, and the girl at the time was said to be sixteen years of age. That would make her now, if she were living, thirty years old. And this girl cannot be more than twenty."

"That is one of the strange features in her strange case. For the last two years she has been changing back again to youth and almost to childhood in appearance. But she is in truth that Marie Serafinne who was tried for infanticide fourteen years ago, and who owed her acquittal to the legal ability, logic and eloquence of that good and great Ishmael Worth."

"You amaze me! I cannot yet credit this story," I answered musingly.

"Come, I will convince you. I will go into the drawing-room this evening, and tell you the whole story, as I have learned it partly from herself and partly from others. You will acknowledge that it is the strangest story you ever heard in your life; but you must of course set down the amazing phenomena of the last two years of her life to the fancies of her own mania."

And so saying, the doctor guided me out of the long hall through the shrubberies, to the part of the building occupied by the surgeon-in-charge.

I may as well state here, to make all clear, that I was a cousin of the surgeon's wife, and then on my first visit at their house, to spend the Christmas holidays.

Then the gathering up of your reins and the fresh grasp of your spear as you look with straining eyes—now in the direction of the captain of the hunt for the signal to go, now to the animal itself, inwardly praying that he may not turn back into cover. And then when the word "Ride!" is given—the mad rush, the utter inability to see anything to stop you, the overpowering anxiety to beat every one, be it your greatest friend or greatest enemy, and get first spear.

Your heart is in your head. There is nothing in the world to you but your lanky grey monster striding away in front and your frantic desire to run him through. Hours are lived in moments. Your horse and you are one animal, with but one unfulfilled wish in the world, a wish you are both doing your very utmost to gratify.

In not other sport perhaps is there so much real danger, yet, strange to say, accidents are really very few. I have ridden in cold blood—very carefully—over ground that I and my comrades have ridden over helter skelter after a pig previously, and to say that I have been astonished is but to describe my feelings in the very feeblest way. How the horses kept their footing it is impossible to say. All I know is that they did.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS. A Few Stories About Well-Known People.

A good story is being told of the days when the Earl of Crewe was Viceroy of Ireland. He had a considerable sense of the importance of the Viceroyalty, and when out walking one morning with a lady he passed first through a small gate. "The Prince of Wales always opens a door for me," said his companion reprovingly. "That may be," returned Lord Crewe; "but I represent the Queen."

Professor John Muirhead, of Birmingham University, was once examining some children in moral teaching, and he asked them to write an essay on the three stages of life. One bright child sent in the following: "There are three stages in life. The first is when we are very young, and think of the wicked things which we shall be able to do when we are older; and this is the age of innocence. The second is when we are older, and are able to do the wicked things which we thought about when we were young; and this is the prime of life. The third is when we are dotty and repent the wicked things which we did when we were younger; and this is the dotage."

Madame Melba, the prima donna, has recently confessed that, as a child, she never possessed any dolls. "I never had a wish for dolls," she has said, "nor the time to play with them. My favorite toys were my tiny harp and violin, and in their company I spent thousands of blissful hours as a little girl. I was only four years old when my father began to teach me music, and at eight I could play almost any piece at sight. At twelve I was leading soprano in a church at Albany, and a little later I became organist and choirmaster."

Here is the latest story concerning Mr. Rudyard Kipling. Recently he was a guest at a literary dinner at which one of the guests started a discussion concerning the spelling and pronunciation of the English language. "Have you ever noticed, Mr. Kipling," he said, "that in the entire English language there are only two words beginning with 'su' that are pronounced as though beginning with 'sh'? Those two are sumach and sugar. Having made an exhaustive study of the subject, you may take it from me that this is so." Bored though he was, Kipling's politeness did not desert him. Assuming an expression of interest, although his eyes twinkled behind his glasses, he quietly asked, "Are you sure?"

SLOW ART.
"I consider this painting a beautiful piece of work," commented the art dealer contemplating the portrait of the sleeping canine. "It's a dog after Landseer." "Is that so?" exclaimed Neurich. "Well, the pup doesn't seem to be going after him very industriously."

WHEN TO USE DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were originally a perscription used in the doctor's private practice and their benefit to mankind has been increased many thousand fold by their being placed on general sale throughout the world with the doctor's own directions for use. They are entirely safe and contain no opiate or habit-forming drugs.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a remedy to use when the blood is thin as in anaemia; or impure, as in rheumatism, or when the nerves are weak, as in neuralgia; or lifeless in paralysis; or when the body as a whole is ill nourished, as in general debility. They build up the blood, strengthen the nerves and cure the troubles of women and growing girls, and many forms of weakness. That thousands of people have tried this treatment with good results is shown by the constantly increasing number of cures reported.

Mr. Paul Charbonneau, a young man well-known in the town of St. Jerome, Que., is one of the host who bear testimony to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He says:—"When I left school I became a bookkeeper in an important office. Probably due to the confinement I began to suffer from indigestion and loss of strength. I became pale and seemingly bloodless and was often seized with palpitation of the heart and violent headaches. I tried several remedies, but they did not do me a bit of good. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and did so, and the use of eight boxes brought me back to perfect health and strength. I have since enjoyed the best of health and cannot say too much in praise of this valuable medicine."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LEARNED MOTHER'S VALUE.

Three Daughters Found Out What House-keeping Meant.

This happened years ago, but it is worth repeating. In a certain home was the over-indignant mother of three daughters. You can just imagine what the week's washing was with dresses for all of those girls, each with three or four petticoats, besides many other articles. This mother did the washing, ironing, cooking, baking and about everything imaginable, and the daughters—well, they were "cultured" and did not do very much of anything except eat the good meals and wear the clean clothes. One day the father called the mother aside. The two had a long talk and he admitted he was not able to hire a domestic. The next day the usual complaint was made by the girls about the poor dinner and the mother quietly got up, went to her room, dressed and came downstairs. She carried a heavy suitcase and stopped long enough to tell the children that she hoped they would have a better meal the next day. Their father took her to the station and she was away from home one month. Every one of those girls learned to cook, bake, scrub and look after the house, although

HEALING EXTRAORDINARY.

Mr. Finnigan was out of sorts, and Mrs. Finnigan sent for the doctor, who came, examined the patient, wrote a perscription, and said:

"Just take that and you'll be all right," and departed. Next day he called again, when Mrs. Finnigan opened the door to him with a beaming face.

"Sure that was a wonderful wee bit of paper ye left yesterday, sur," she exclaimed. "Terence is quite better to-day."

"I am glad to hear that," said the medical man.

"Not but what I hadn't a job to get him to take it," went on Mrs. Finnigan, "but sure I just wrapped up the wee bit of paper quite small an' put it in a spoonful of jam, an' Terence swallowed it unbeknownst, an' by night he was better."

HOW IT GREW.

Mrs. A. (to Mrs. B.)—"That Mrs. Newcomer is so fond of children. The other day when I called she was blowing soap bubbles with them through a common clay pipe."

Mrs. B. (to Mrs. C.)—"That Mrs. Newcomer is so junny. Mrs. A. saw her amusing the children with a common clay pipe."

Mrs. C. (to Mrs. D.)—"That Mrs. Newcomer smokes a common clay pipe."

Mrs. D. (to Mrs. E.)—"That Mrs. Newcomer smokes a horrid pipe. I don't see how any woman in her sober senses could do that."

Mrs. E. (to Mrs. F.)—"That Mrs. Newcomer smokes a pipe and drinks awfully."

Used according to directions, Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial will afford relief in the most acute form of summer complaint. Whenever the attack manifests itself no time should be lost in seeking the aid of the Cordial. It will act immediately on the stomach and intestines and allay the irritation and pain. A trial of it will convince anyone of the truth of these assertions.

The other day a benevolent old gentleman was stopped by a tramp, who asked for money to get a night's lodging. "Well, look here, my man," the old gentleman said, "what would you say if I offered you work?" "Bless yer life, sir," came the reply. "I wouldn't mind a bit. I can take a joke same as most people."

LIGHTS ON LOVE.

True love talks little, and does much.

Love is not blind, but those whom it affects are.

A smiling "No" does not always mean "Yes."

Love is full of disappointments, but they are all worth while.

The wise woman marries a plain man because the contrast is in her favor.

Love may make the world go round, but friendship keeps it going steady.

The only perfect woman is the woman each man thinks he loves at the moment.

A girl's indignation when a man kisses her is only equalled by her enjoyment of it.

The bachelor with sisters knows best how to guard against the wiles of the cuter sex.

The loneliest man in the world is he who has neither old love-letters nor tender memories.

WAY OF THE WORLD.

"I understand the Neweds are having trouble," remarked the spinster boarder. "Some people take her part, and some others side with him."

"And I suppose," growled the scanty-haired bachelor at the pedal extremity of the mahogany, "there are a few eccentric people who mind their own business."

She carried a heavy suitcase and stopped long enough to tell the children that she hoped they would have a better meal the next day. Their father took her to the station and she was away from home one month. Every one of those girls learned to cook, bake, scrub and look after the house, although they admitted that for a week they lived on bakers' bread, lemonade, quince preserves and either salmon or sardines. It was a hard lesson for them to learn, but they knew the value of their mother after that.

A BOON TO MOTHERS.

When Children are Injured

Children are always sustaining cuts, bruises, burns, etc., and not infrequently contract ringworm, scalp diseases, and similar skin troubles at school. Mothers will find Zam-Buk without equal for all these accidents and diseases.

Mrs. Thomas Allen, 156, Water Street, St. Mary's (Ont.), says:—"My daughter Mildred, 4 years old, was severely burned by falling on a hot flat iron. She was burned on the heel, instep, and on the thigh very badly. I at once applied some Zam-Buk, which eased the pain, and in the course of a few days the wounds were thoroughly healed."

Mrs. George Aldridge, 12, Louise Street, Stratford, says:—"While playing I footed about the yard my son Bertram, 6 years old, stepped on a broken glass bottle, which cut very deeply into his big toe. The cut was so deep that I sent for a doctor and had the foot properly dressed, the doctor leaving a lotion to be applied daily. Under this treatment, however, the wound seemed to get no better, but on the contrary inflammation set in. A kindly neighbour then recommended Zam-Buk. We obtained a supply, and after a few applications the child seemed to rest better, and the pain was very much reduced. In a few days, under the Zam-Buk treatment, the wound assumed a better appearance, and from that time healing was very rapid. Inflammation and soreness were finally completely banished, and in ten days from the first application of Zam-Buk, we took the bandages from the foot. I feel sure that but for Zam-Buk the child would have had a very bad time, and might have had to sacrifice the toe."

Not only for cuts, burns, bruises, etc., is Zam-Buk effective, but also for serious skin diseases such as eczema, ringworm, ulcers, etc. It also cures poisoned sores, chronic wounds, bad leg, piles, festering sores, chapped hands, cold sores, frost-bite, and all skin injuries and diseases. Druggists and stores everywhere sell at 50c a box, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto; 3 boxes $1.25. You are warned against harmful imitations sometimes represented to be "just as good."

PUTTING OFF THE DAY.

She was trying to persuade her husband to give up smoking, and she had pointed out to him one day the exact amount of his expenses for tobacco during the course of a year.

"Besides, my dear," she persisted, "you will be better off, mentally, physically and financially, without the pipe and the cigars."

"Well, maybe so; but all great men have smoked," he argued.

"Well," she sighed, "just promise me, dear, that you'll give up smoking until you are great. Then I'll be perfectly satisfied."

CURED OF LAME BACK WHEN 54.

Mr. Samuel Martin, of Stratford, Ont., passed twenty years of his life in misery, suffering tortures from Lame Back. He tried nearly all the advertised remedies and household recipes, but received no benefit from any of them.

Some months ago, seeing Cin Pills advertised, Mr. Martin purchased a box. The relief which Mr. Martin experienced after he had taken one box was so great that he knew he had found the right remedy at last. He used two more boxes and is now completely cured.

Mr. Headstall—"That horse you brought yesterday seems a vicious-looking animal. Is he affectionate?" Mr. Cropper—"Affectionate? I should think so. Why, when he came out of the stable he stood upon his hind legs and tried to embrace me."

After making a most careful study of the matter, U. S. Government scientists state definitely that the common house fly is the principal means of distributing typhoid fever, diphtheria and smallpox. Wilson's Fly Pads kill the flies and the disease germs, too.

Jenkins—"Well, sir, I gave it to that man straight. I can tell you. He is twice as big as I am, too, but I told him exactly what I thought of his rascally conduct right to his face, and I called him all the names in the dictionary, and a lot of others as well." Studde—"And didn't he try to hit you, Jenkins?" Jenkins—"No, sir, he didn't. And when he tried to answer back, I just hung up the telephone receiver and walked away."

It is Known Everywhere. — There is not a city, town or hamlet in Canada where Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil is not known—wherever introduced it made a foothold for itself and maintained it. Some merchants may suggest some other remedy as equally beneficial. Such recommendations should be received with doubt. There is only one Electric Oil, and that is Dr. Thomas'. Take nothing else.

THE APPLE CELLAR.

How to Make and to Keep It Neat and Sweet.

An apple cellar should be the tidiest and sweetest corner of the house. Nothing else should ever be stored in it. Its walls should be at least twenty inches thick and it should have abundant light. In summer it should be open to draughts of air and kept free of any decay.

There should be no mouldy boards nor any smell of mildew; in other words, the air should be fit to breathe. When the apples are stored the draught should be stopped and when steady cold sets in you should shut the cellar tight and let it stay tightly closed until May.

You can place such a cellar as this conveniently under part of your barn or under your carriage house, says Outing, only there should be no stable adjacent. The floor overhead should be covered with autumn leaves spread thickly to prevent any change of atmosphere below. The thermometer all winter should stand at about 33—just above freezing. Put your apples in shallow bins, cement the floor to keep out rats and if barrels are used set them up somewhat from the floor.

EVERY HOUSEKEEPER—must often act as a family physician. Painkiller for all the little ills, cuts and sprains as well as for bowel complaints, is irreplaceable. Avoid substitutes, there is but one "Painkiller"—Perry Davis, 25c and 50c.

David Slowpay—"I shall bring you back those dark trousers to be resealed, Mr. Snip. You know I sit a good deal." Mr. Snip (tailor)—"All right; and if you'll bring the bill I sent you six months ago, I will be pleased to receipt that also. You know I've stood a good deal."

Away With Depression and Melancholy.—These two evils are the accompaniment of a disordered stomach and torpid liver and mean wretchedness to all whom they visit. The surest and speediest way to combat them is with Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, which will restore the healthful action of the stomach and bring relief. They have proved their usefulness in thousands of cases and will continue to give relief to the suffering who are wise enough to use them.

OTTAWA NEWS.

In a few weeks the House will meet for the consideration of public business and it is significant that the Toronto Mail and Empire places itself upon record with regard to coming events in a manner conspicuously inconsistent. Alluding to matters likely to be brought to the attention of Parliament the Mail says:—

What They Say Now.

"In addition, a policy has to be announced on the subject of naval defence. It is not probable, however, that the consideration of these matters will be in any degree contentious. The entire House may be expected to unite with a view to perfecting whatever propositions are made."

This is the "Mail" view of it. Only a few days ago Mr. Magrath, one of the new Conservative members from the West visited Ottawa, and while there he placed himself upon record as opposed to the proposals of the Government, so far as they were foreshadowed in English despatches. He is quoted as saying that he would oppose them if he stood alone. The Mail cannot therefore, be said to speak for the Conservative members in the House.

Should be Unanimous.

It would be a very desirable thing for the House to be unanimous in support of whatever is advanced by the Government in the direction of Canadian contribution to Imperial defence. There may be honest differences of opinion as to the details of a project of this magnitude, but as to the main principle, the House should be of one mind. The people of Canada are unanimous that this great Dominion should take a prominent part in Imperial defence, what part that shall be they are willing to leave to the discretion of the Government they have placed in power. They will not tolerate any obstruction from individual members, who cannot claim to represent views other than their own.

Conference was Deliberate

The subject having been considered by Canadian ministers of the Crown, in conference with the Imperial authorities, it must be assumed that any decision arrived at, and presented to the House as the decision of the Government, is one that is in sympathy with Imperial views, and is the best solution of the problem that the Canadian Government can arrive at. Under these circumstances a Canadian Parliament unanimously endorsing the proposals of the Government, would do more for Imperial unity, than the carping criticisms of a few men who had not the advantage of the knowledge gained by those whose privilege it was to attend the conference in England. Two great political parties in Canada, united in a scheme involving the defence of the Empire, would be an object less of great value, independent of any other consideration.

Keep Them in Line.

Every man mentioned by Judge Cassels as having been unfaithful to his trust and therefore no longer competent to act in an official capacity has been discharged by the Government. Therefore the statement of Mr. Borden is misleading. It should be remembered also that these men were appointed by a former Conservative government. Had they been removed when the Liberal Government came into power they would not have brought discredit upon it.

Reckless Statement by "Mail".

A pernicious statement placed in circulation by the Toronto Mail and Empire is going the rounds of the Conservative press, relating to the public debt of Canada. The Mail makes the audacious assertion that the country went behind, or in debt $45,000,000 last year.

What "The Mail" Says.

The Mail says: "From March 31, 1908, to March 31, 1909, we added $150,000 every day to our public debt. That is the Mail asserts that the public debt has been added to $54,750,000 the past fiscal year.

This is absolute nonsense. In 1896 the interest we had to pay on the public debt was $1.79 per head. On 31 March, 1909, the date mentioned by the Mail the interest we had to pay on the public debt was $1.33 per head.

To prove the reckless character of statements placed before the public by the Mail and Empire, the following example from its issue of October 8 will suffice. The Mail says:

"From March 31, 1908, to March 31, 1909, we added $160,000 every day to our national debt. The new debt created last year lays upon us for interest charges alone no less than $1,500,000 per annum."

If $150,000 every day has been added to the public debt between March, 1908, and March, 1909. The sum of $54,750,000 must have been added to the public debt.

The Truth Of it.

The net public debt on 31 March, 1908, was $277,960,859.84 and the net public debt on 31 March, 1909, was $323,930,279.17, the difference between these figures is exactly $45,969,419.33, which represents the new increase in the public debt for the period stated.

Mail Out $8,781,000.

In other words the Mail and Empire is $8,781,000 out in its figures and to this extent as to this item alone, is shown to be reckless and unreliable when dealing with public questions.

Another Reckless Statement.

The further statement that the new debt created last year lays upon us for interest charges alone no less than $1,500,000 per annum is equally reckless and inaccurate. The interest charges for 1908 upon the public debt up to 31 March, 1908, were $10,973,596.88. The interest charges for 1909 upon the public debt up to 31 March, 1909, were approximately $11,600,000 an increase of say $625,000, and not $1,500,000 as stated by the Mail.

Why Debt Was Increased.

The additions to the public debt were made necessary by the building of the National Transcontinental and the Quebec bridge. Eliminate these two sources of expense and there would have been no occasion to borrow money except to pay off maturing loans created by the former Conservative government.

Conclusion of Rambling Distribe.

The Mail concludes a rambling diatribe against the government by saying:

"Parliament will have to deal with this terrible situation. We cannot afford to keep up the prevailing system of folly, extravagance and graft."

Some Small Canadians.

Canada is too great for many of the men in it. Any person who pretends to express public opinion, and says that the people of Canada object to the building of the National Transcontinental because of its cost, has misread history.

Only Optimists Wanted.

Any person occupying a quasi public opinion who takes a course which may embarrass the Government and retard the progress of the country, will meet with disaster, political oblivion will be his reward. Canada has entered upon an era of great prosperity. The lands of the west are rapidly becoming occupied, the manufacturers of the east are busily employed in filling western orders. New areas are being populated, new homes are being made in every direction, and the paramount duty of the Government is to provide the facilities of transportation so that one part of the Dominion may have easy access to the other. The money of the people is being expended wisely in bringing about this state of things. The railway monopoly of the west is a thing of the past. The future is bright and looks brighter because Canada is blessed with a progressive Government, an eminent statesman at the head of it, and a contented people supporting the administration, who are not misled by the vapors of a self-seeking newspaper of the political variety.

The Winze.

The superintendent of a western mine in driving a tunnel struck a body of ore. The vein was vertical and had a sharp dip. To develop it and get ready to mine the ore it was necessary to put down a winze—that is, to sink a shaft, in this instance an incline.

Elated over the discovery, he telegraphed the board in the east that he had struck rich shipping ore and received the laconic reply to begin shipping at once.

He wired that he could not ship any ore until he had a winze on the vein.

"How much will a winze cost?" was the telegraphic query.

"One thousand dollars," he replied promptly.

The next query floored him. It read, "Can't you buy a secondhand winze cheaper?"

striking criticisms of a few men who had not the advantage of the knowledge gained by those whose privilege it was to attend the conference in England. Two great political parties in Canada, united in a scheme involving the defence of the Empire, would be an object less of great value, independent of any other consideration.

Keep Them in Line.

It is to be hoped that upon this question Mr. Borden will realize the necessity of keeping his followers in line, thus avoiding a controversy which may be misunderstood in a direction where it is particularly desirable in view of all the circumstances, to preserve an unbroken front.

It is not unlikely that, when dealing with a subject involving the defences of the country, the Government may find it desirable to withhold certain details. This must be expected, but the people have unbounded faith in the statesmanship and honesty of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the details may safely be left to his judgement.

Administration Proved Good.

The Mail says that "there will be a fight over the general system of administration and the impropriety which distinguishes it." If this is all there won't be much of a fight. Previous to the elections last October the Conservatives made the best fight they knew how, and the result was that any weakness in the general system of administration was found to be a legacy from the Conservative party. As to impropriety in the administration none was found, neither was there any charge made against any member of the administration. There was no such charge made in the House, no such charge made before the public accounts committee, and no such charge made on the public platform throughout the campaign, for the very good reason that the Conservative party discovered nothing upon which such a charge could be based. Not a strange result because there was nothing to discover, nothing concealed, but all public matters were thrown open for the fullest possible scrutiny and investigation.

Mail Guesses at This.

The Mail proceeds with its tale of woe as follows:

"The transference of the intercolonial to a commission has not brought about a reform. The partitionship remains—the deficit is as large as ever."

What does the Mail know about this? The Minister has made no statement to this House on the subject. What reforms have been accomplished are known to the Minister, and not to the Mail. The Mail says partitionship remains. The Mail knows nothing about it. The Mail says the deficit is as large as ever. How can the Mail know this when the accounts are not yet in a position to come before Parliament?

Comment Shows Ignorance.

The Mail would do wisely to suppress ignorant comment on the management of the Intercolonial. When the Minister of Railways and Canals makes his statement will be time enough to criticize it. In the meantime it is sufficient to say that the Mail knows nothing of the subject upon which it expresses these opinions. The people should give them no attention because when Hon. Mr. Graham makes his statement to the House, the ignorance of the Mail will be made manifest and the people will find that they did well to rely upon the integrity and ability of the Minister of Railways and Canals.

Mr. Borden Makes an Error.

Mr. Borden stated in Montreal the other day that notwithstanding the finding of the Cassels' commission, nothing had been done to punish the guilty parties. What are the facts?

Conclusion of Rambling Distribute.

The Mail concludes a rambling distribute against the government by saying:

"Parliament will have to deal with this terrible situation. We cannot afford to keep up the prevailing system of folly, extravagance and graft."

The People Authorized it.

What there is terrible in the situation is not made clear by the Mail. Parliament passed the bill authorizing the building of the National Transcontinental, the people endorsed such action at the polls, once in 1904 and again in 1908. The road cannot be constructed without money, and the Government has been the medium of circulating in Canada many millions of dollars that would have found other sources of employment, had the Government not undertaken this great national work.

Blinded by Prejudice.

The Mail is blinded by political prejudice and has become reckless in its statements. The public accounts are open to any man who wants the facts.

Public Debt Increased.

On the subject of the public debt it is interesting to note that on September 30, 1909, the net debt of the Dominion was $820,698,464 or $3,231,815 less than it was on 31st March, 1909. The Mail should study the financial statement of the Dominion for the first half of the present fiscal year. The following are extracts from it.

Financial Affairs for Six Months.

The revenue for the first six months of the present fiscal year shows an increase of $6,525,297, as compared with the first six months of 1908-9.

For the month of September alone the increase in revenue was $1,570,709, as compared with the same month last year, and the total expenditure decreased, as compared with September of last year, $2,584,275.

Revenue for six months ending 30 September, 1909, $47,353,819.

Expenditure on consolidated fund account for same period, $31,563,393.

Expenditure on capital account for same period, $13,213,063.

Highest Revenue in History.

These figures will indicate that the revenue this year may be the highest in the history of the Dominion. Is there any cause for anxiety?

The Mail is alarmed at the addition to the public debt and in its desire to point a moral, is led into gross exaggerations. Perhaps the Mail will answer this question. Is the Mail in favor of the construction of the National Transcontinental? Or does the Mail oppose the enterprise?

With Us or Against Us.

If the Mail is in favor of building the railroad, it must of necessity be in favor of paying the cost of construction. Then why all this foolish criticism about a matter that has been fully decided upon by the people of Canada who are providing the money?

If the Mail is opposed to the construction of this railroad the better plan would be to come out openly and say so. If the road is to be built money to do so must be provided every reasonable man will at once acknowledge that the criticism of the Mail on the point of growing debt is beside the mark when it is acknowledged that the money is well spent.

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box 851 Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

Wild Apples.

In the Sandwich Islands the apple has become wild, and whole forests of trees, many acres in extent, are found in various parts of the country. They extend from the level of the sea far up into the mountain sides. It is said that miles of these apple forests can occasionally be seen, and were beautiful when in fruit, both when in flower and in fruit.

"IN THE HOUR OF DEATH."

A Note on the Authorship of a Well Known Poem.

The question is often asked in news- papers and magazines, "Who wrote the poem beginning 'In the hour of death, after this life's whirl'?"

The answer is given that nothing is known of the author. It is true this poem was published with only the initials of the writer in the University Magazine in 1879. But I hold the manuscript of the poem, and I have also Blackmore's letter that accom- panied it. Blackmore has been so long dead I do not feel that there can be any harm in giving his letter to the public. I subjoin an exact copy of it; also of his poem.

"My Dear Sir—Having lately been at the funeral of a most dear relation, I was there again in a dream last night and heard mourners sing the lines inclosed, which impressed me so that I was able to write them without change of a word this morning. I never heard or read them before to my knowledge. They do not look so well on paper as they sounded. But if you like to print them here they are, only please do not print my name beyond initials or send me money for them. With all good wishes to Mrs. Cook and yourself, very truly yours,

THE MAN IN THE STAGE.

A Tragedy of the Olden Days in New York City.

A good many years ago, long before skyscrapers and rapid transit were thought of and New York was just a big growing town, they used to tell a story that was ghastly enough to curdle the blood of the most skeptical and to keep people of nervous temper- ament awake of nights.

The tale went that of a summer night a husband and wife, returning home from the theater, entered a Fifth avenue stage far downtown and for many blocks were the only occupants. A little above Fourteenth street, how- ever, the stage came to an abrupt stop, the door was opened, and three young men entered. One of the three had evidently been drinking heavily, for his companions were obliged to help him to his seat. The door was closed behind them, and the stage con- tinued its journey northward.

About ten blocks farther on one of the young men rose and, bidding his friends good night, stopped the stage and alighted. A few minutes later the second of the three said, "Well, good night, Dick," pulled the strap, stepped to the sidewalk and walked off through one of the side streets. There remained in the stage only the husband and wife and the young man who was obviously under the influ- ence of liquor and who sat in a crouching attitude in a corner of the stage under the dim flickering lamp.

After a time the husband noticed that the young man's head seemed to be drooping as if in sleep, and, fearing that he might be borne beyond his destination, he rose, rapped him on the shoulder and called attention to the number of the street they had just passed. There was no response, and the husband repeated his words, lean- ing over as he did so. Then he sud- denly straightened up, turned to his wife and said quickly, "We will get out here."

She began to protest, but he simply repeated the words, pulled the strap and helped her to alight. As they stood under the corner lamppost she turned questioningly and asked him why he insisted on their getting out of the bus so far below their destina- tion.

"Because," he replied, "that young man's throat was cut from ear to ear."

HORSESHOE LUCK.

An Old Myth That Goes Back to the Greeks and Their Sea God.

Of all the emblems for good fortune the horseshoe stands among the first. Everybody knows it is unlucky to pass a horseshoe on the road without pick- ing it up. It is a luck emblem of the greatest power. We are indebted for this statement to old tales centuries in age that have descended from father to son, from mother to daughter, through the years.

The old myths repay research. The luck of the horseshoe has a most re- spectable beginning. It is traced to the religion of the old Greeks and their sea god, Poseidon, who was identical with the Roman sea god Neptune.

To Poseidon horses were sacred, and to him they were sacrificed. Poseidon was believed to have created the first horse when he struck the ground with his trident and a horse sprang from the hole, which afterward became a spring. The sea god was the lord of springs. To him all springs were ascribed. In the shape of a horse he sometimes wandered by the shores of his ocean domain, and where he struck his hoofs deeply there the waters gush- ed out and permanent springs were found. This is the reason why horse-

Valuable Ragged Clothes.

It often happens that the parts taken by actors on the stage oblige them to wear ragged clothes. To ob- tain such clothes, of the requisite de- gree of decrepitude, is likely to be very difficult. They cannot be made to order; it is necessary that they shall have arrived at the desired con- dition of prolonged wear. The re- mark applies as much to a coat or a pair of pantaloons as to a pair of shoes.

Many a professional comedian has spent anxious days in searching the slums of a city for some accidental "bummer" whose coat or trousers pos- sessed the requisite attributes of rag- gedness and obvious antiquity.

The same idea applies, of course, to the shabby and ragged clothing often worn by women on the stage. To look right, it must be the real thing— which is by no means so easy to get as one might imagine. A "find" of the kind, once made, is anxiously treasured—the first thing done with it naturally, being to subject it to a thorough fumigation. Ash dumps have furnished many a precious article of apparel for theatrical ward- robes.

As a Last Resort.

The new minister of a small town in Inverness-shire was walking home from morning service recently when he chanced to overtake one of his parishioners, an old shoemaker. "Good morning, Mr. Bain," said the minis- ter. "How is it your good wife is not out to-day?"

"She's no' but poorly," was the re- ply. "It's nae wink of sleep she's had for the last three nights."

The minister was sorry to hear such a poor account of Mrs. Bain's health and expressed a wish for a speedy improvement.

"I'm thinking if she could get a guid sleep," said the shoemaker. "she'd soon be on the mend. Maybe if ye're passing the house to-morrow ye'll no' object to ca' in an' just give her frae 'lastly' to the end of your dis- course this morning. I'm no' saying it wadna be very helpful."—Dundee Advertiser.

A Joke of Mark Twain's.

Probably few people are aware that the theatrical godfather of that famous actor Mr. William Gillette was Mark Twain, who was a fellow townsman and a friend of his father, Mark Twain in referring to the matter said that when he used his influence to get young Gillette on the stage he thought he was playing a great joke on the management, for he did not think Gillette had the slightest aptitude for acting. But it turned out to be no joke after all. "I don't know," said Mark Twain, "which I like better—having Gillette make a tremendous success or seeing one of my jokes go wrong."

spring. The sea god was the lord of springs. To him all springs were ascribed. In the shape of a horse he sometimes wandered by the shores of his ocean domain, and where he struck his hoofs deeply there the waters gushed out and permanent springs were found. This is the reason why horse-shoes are reckoned lucky. Going to the root of the matter, one sees a nature myth as the root principle. From the sea all rain comes, and to the sea all springs owe primal origin, and to the rain and the fresh waters, sea derived. We owe all fertility on earth.

The old Greeks therefore worshipped Poseidon as the fortune giver through his springs. They gave him horses, his precious beasts, and they adored the footprints of horses when they found them, for they might be the very footprints of the god himself.

When the horses came to be shod the transition of the luck emblem from the footprint itself to the shoe mark, practically the same thing, was easy.

Pegasus, the winged horse, from whose hoofs the water springs gushed copiously when he came to earth, has been credited with the origin of the horseshoe luck.

The horseshoe was a specific against earthquakes. It would keep a house safe from harm by earth shaking. Again one perceives the sea myth—Poseidon was the shaker of the earth. —Team Owners' Gazette.

Make Each Animal Worth 25% Over Its Cost

On 3/4 of a Cent a Day

Nobody ever heard of "stock food" curing the bots or colic, making hens lay in winter, increasing the yield of milk five pounds per cow a day, or restoring run-down animals to plumpness and vigor.

When you feed "stock food" to your cow, horse, swine or poultry, you are merely feeding them what you are growing on your own farm.

Your animals do need more feed, but something to help their bodies get all the good out of the feed you give them so they can get fat and stay fat all year round; also to prevent disease, cure disease and keep them up to the best possible condition. No "stock food" can do all these things. ROYAL PURPLE STOCK SPECIFIC

Not a "Stock Food" But a "Conditioner"

ROYAL PURPLE STOCK SPECIFIC contains no grain, nor farm products. It increases yield of milk from three to five pounds per cow per day before the Specific has been used two weeks. It makes the milk richer and adds flesh faster than any other preparation known.

Young calves fed with ROYAL PURPLE are as large at six weeks old as they would be when fed with ordinary materials for two weeks.

ROYAL PURPLE STOCK SPECIFIC builds up run-down animals and restores them to plumpness almost magically. Cures bots, colic, worms, skin diseases and restores them to Dan McEwan, the horseman, says: "I have used ROYAL PURPLE STOCK SPECIFIC persistently in the feeding of 'The Eel,' 2,024, largest winner of any pacer on Grand Circuit in 1908, and 'Henry Winters,' 2,094, brother of 'Allen Winters,' winner of $36,000 in trotting stakes in 1908. These horses have never been off their feed since I commenced using Royal Purple Specific almost a year ago, and I will always have it in my stables."

Royal Purple STOCK AND POULTRY SPECIFICS

One 50c. package of ROYAL PURPLE STOCK SPECIFIC will last one animal seventy days, which is a little over two-thirds of a cent a day. Most stock foods in fifty cent packages last but fifty days and are given three times a day. ROYAL PURPLE STOCK SPECIFIC is given but once a day, and lasts half again as long. A $1.50 pack containing four times the amount of the fifty cent package will last 280 days. ROYAL PURPLE will increase the value of your stock 25%. It is an astonishingly quick fattener, stimulating the appetite and the relish for food, assisting nature to digest and turn feed into flesh, so a hog fattener it is a leader. It will save many times its cost in veterinary bills. ROYAL PURPLE POULTRY SPECIFIC is one of our other Specifics for poultry, not for stock. One 50 cent package will last twenty-two hens 70 days, or a pair costing $1.50 will last twenty-five hens 280 days, which is four times more material for only three times the cost. It makes a "laying machine" out of your hens. Every package of ROYAL PURPLE STOCK SPECIFIC or POULTRY SPECIFIC is guaranteed.

Just use ROYAL PURPLE on one of your animals and any other preparation on another animal in the same condition: after comparing results you will say ROYAL PURPLE has them all beat to death, or else back comes your money. FREE—Ask your merchant or write us for our valuable 32-page booklet on cattle and poultry diseases, containing also cooking recipes and full particulars about ROYAL PURPLE STOCK and POULTRY SPECIFICS.

It seems that public sentiment is growing all through this Dominion in favor of local option, and the friends of temperance here would like to assist in this movement, and the Dominion Alliance requested Rev. Mr. Burke to come to Bath and deliver an address. He complied with the invitation and the meeting was held in the town hall, here, and the talk he gave us was not only logical but argumentative. The next day a petition was drawn up and circulated, and in a short time it was signed by more than twenty-five per cent of the ratepayers. The petition was then handed to the clerk, and at the first meeting of the council it was graciously received and the by-law ordered, and will be presented to the council on the first Wednesday in November, for further action, and the friends of this movement hope that when Bath's thoughtful citizens come to vote on January 3rd, they will mark their ballots in favor of local option, and then we can have one or two hotels without a bar, and our people will have the satisfaction of knowing they have had some part in the elevation of the masses.

A COLEBROOKE WEDDING.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Warner, Colebrooke was the scene of a pretty wedding, on Tuesday, Oct. 19th, when Belva, their third daughter, was united in marriage to Stinson Osgood Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allison Martin, Yarker. Rev. J. Bartstone, of Yarker, performed the ceremony. "Warnerheim" was beautifully decorated for the occasion, with wedding bells and festoons of vines and greenery, tied with true lovers knots of white satin ribbon. Bouquets of white carnations, chrysanthemums and roses were arranged in profusion throughout the house. Mendelssohn's triumphant wedding music was played by Miss Georgie Warner. At the stroke of twelve the bridegroom and his attendant, Ross M. McLae, of Kingston, assumed their station in an alcove of flowers and greenery, and awaited the bride, who entered, accompanied by her father and preceded by her sister, Miss Florence Warner, as maid of honor. Only intimate friends of the couple witnessed the services. One of the pleasing features of the wedding was the presence of the bride's aged grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Garrison, Mc-cow, who have shared life's joys and sorrows for over sixty-six years; also the presence of Mrs. Bell, widow of the late Alexander Melville Bell, Washington, D. C.

The bride wore a becoming gown of white louisiane silk, made in semi-princess style, the front panel laced with satin cord and buttons with a yoke of chiffon embroidered with pearls, edged with gold lace and gold bugle fringe, and carried a sheaf of white roses and lilies of the valley. She wore the same quaint coronet of orange blossoms worn by her mother on her wedding day, and from it, falling in graceful cascades and following the sweep of the train, fell the pearl hemmed bridal veil. A beautiful chain and sunburst of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom, completed the costume. Her sister, Miss Florence, wore a gown of pink silk in the polonaise style over a dainty plaited underskirt of pink messaline. Trimmings of silk lace embroidered in silk formed the yoke and sleeves, extending down the front panel and around the overskirt. The front panel being crossed with straps of silk, buttoned with tiny jet buttons. A bridesmaid's veil of tulle falling almost to the waist line was fastened to the hair with carnations and a large auburn bow of tulle. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations tied with streamers of pink satin ribbons.

Immediately after the ceremony and in the midst of showers of congratulations, the attendants pulled the long ribbons falling from the large wedding bell, releasing confetti which completely showered the newly-married couple. After the wedding repast the bridal party drove to Napanee, where they boarded the train for Buffalo, the bride wearing a tailored suit of wisteria broadcloth, with hat to match. On their return they will take up residence in Montreal.

TALL AFRICAN GRASS.

Beautiful Scenes at Night on the Veldt When Fire Spreads.

Unlike a good deal of South Africa, Rhodesia is largely wooded. In some places the forests are of value, but a large proportion is not valued for its timber. The grass in this part of Africa grows to a phenomenal height in the valleys, and especially in the valleys of the Sabi and Zambesi rivers it reaches its greatest height. To say that the grass is often twelve feet high is no exaggeration. Naturally it is very easy to lose one's way in this grass if one is unfortunate enough to stray from the beaten track. It is the custom there to burn this grass off each year when it gets dry. This is usually in August and September or even in October. Fires burn for miles, and as the country is largely a wilderness little damage is done by this method of destroying the grass. It is a beautiful sight at night in the fire season to see the hills for miles around encircled with flames.

After the grass has been burned the rainy season usually begins, and it is then that the country is at its prettiest. The grass is then green, and the foliage on the trees is beautiful. The old leaves drop off gradually, and the new ones take their place before the trees are bare. The new leaves are of all shades of the rainbow, and it is much like the fall scenery in this country when the dead leaves are falling from the trees. Waterfalls are numerous in the mountains, and there are many of great height, although the rivers are usually small in volume.

Let the Debtor Beware.

Briggs—A safe conversational rule is, When in doubt talk of the weather. Griggs—Safe nothing! I met my tailor yesterday, and on my speaking of the weather he replied, "Yes, it is unsettled, and that reminds me of that little bill of yours."

County Council

County Council Chambers,
Napanee, Nov. 2d, 1909.

Council met in special session on Tuesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, to consider the questions of passing a by-law to issue debentures for County Roads for the sum of $18,000 the heating of the Court House and Continuation Schools.

Cyrus Edgar, Esq., Warden, presiding, and the members all present except Messrs. R. R. Burleigh and G. A. Wartman.

The minutes of the last session of last meeting were read, and on motion were approved.

The report of the Finance Committee re advertising for tenders for the heating of the Court House was read and adopted.

The by-law for the issue of $18,000 worth of debentures for expenditure on County Roads, was given its first reading.

Moved by Mr. Anderson, seconded by Mr. Allison, that the Finance Committee be asked to ascertain from the Treasurer the exact financial standing of the County at the present date, and report to this Council. Carried.

A deputation from the Town Council of Napanee were present, and asked for a grant towards the new bridge at the east end of the town. Mayor Simpson, Councillors Burrows, Bogart, Gibbard, Alexander and Reeve Rutan presented the case in a very fair and concise manner and were listened to with rapt attention by the members of the County Council.

Moved by Mr. Gilmour, seconded by Mr. Anderson, that the matter be laid on the table until to-morrow morning. Carried.

Mr. Wartman entered and took his seat at the Council Board.

Adjourned until 9 o'clock to-morrow morning.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

Council met at 9 o'clock, pursuant to adjournment, Warden in the chair. Minutes of yesterday's session were read and on motion were confirmed.

Mr. Ryan presented the report asked for yesterday, re the financial condition of the County at the present time. If the debenture by-law should not be passed and if the County rate is all paid in this year the County would even then have a deficit of over $1,400.00.

Moved by Mr. Anderson, seconded by Mr. Hambly, that the Council go into Committee of the Whole on the second reading of the by-law to issue debentures for $18,000.

Mr. Anderson was of the opinion that it would be better to carry the overdraft than to issue debentures.

Mr. Allison was strongly opposed to the by-law.

It was shown, however, that if the by-law was not passed the County would practically be insolvent on the 1st day of January, 1910, which state of affairs would be the first in the history of the County.

After considerable discussion on both sides of the question, the by-law was given its several readings, signed, sealed, numbered and finally passed.

The debenture is for $18,000, to run over a period of twenty years, the principal and interest in each and every year being equal to about one-eighth of a mill on the assessment.

Moved by Mr. Rutan, seconded by Mr. Gilmour, that the tenders for heating be handed to the Finance Committee to report on this afternoon. Lost.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Anderson, seconded by Mr. Dawson, that the tenders be opened in open Council. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Rutan, seconded by Mr. Ryan, that the Council grant to the Town of Napanee the sum of $600.00 a special grant toward the new bridge. Carried unanimously.

The tenders for heating the Court House were then opened, and were

Disease of The Kidneys Brought on By Catarrh.

Pe-ru-na Made a Well Man of Me.
I Cannot Speak Too Highly of It.

Mr. George King, 453 St. Denis St., Montreal, Canada, a well-known business man of that city, writes:

"Peruna cured me from what the doctors were afraid would turn into Bright's disease, and after you have gone through the suffering that I have with catarrh of the bladder and kidney trouble, and have been cured you are pretty apt to remember the medicine that did the work."

"Peruna is a blessing to a sick man. Eight bottles made me well and were worth more than a thousand dollars to me. I cannot speak too highly of it. It is now four years since I was troubled, and I have enjoyed perfect health since. Every spring and fall I take a bottle of it and it keeps me well."

CATARRH of the kidneys is a very much neglected disease.

It is not until the disease has a firm hold upon the kidneys that the patient begins to realize that there is some derangement of these organs.

The slight backaches, the feelings of lassitude, and other warning symptoms of kidney disease are overlooked.

They are not serious enough to detain the patient from his regular work.

Even when he discovers that the kidneys are affected,

INTERNAL CATARRH REACHES THE KIDNEYS, he does not recognize the difficulty as being caused by catarrh.

Catarrh is sometimes so very gradual in its approach and its earlier symptoms cause such slight discomfort that it is not noticed.

However, when it is once firmly seated in the kidneys it becomes a difficult disease to exterminate.

Indeed, catarrh of the kidneys is more serious than catarrh affecting some of the other organs of the body.

In the kidneys it is liable to terminate in Bright's disease or diabetes, both of which are recognized as very serious ailments, if not fatal.

The thing to be done, when catarrh of the kidneys is discovered, is to take some internal, systemic catarrh remedy, one that reaches the very source of the catarrh and removes the cause of the difficulty.

Such a remedy has been found in Peruna. It reaches catarrh, no matter where it may be located in the body—whether in the more exposed membranes of the nose and throat, or whether in the remotest part of the kidneys.

That Peruna is at once the safest and most reliable remedy for catarrh of the kidneys is proven by the many testimonials written by those who have experienced its benefits.

The testimonials given here are only specimens of the many testimonials on our records, pertaining to the relief afforded by Peruna in severe cases of kidney trouble.

Kidney Disease of Long Standing.

Mr. Samuel A. Paxton, 1118 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo., member I.O.O.F. and National Annuity Association, writes:

"I am a well man to-day, thanks to your splendid medicine, Peruna. I was troubled with catarrh and kidney disease of long standing when I first began using Peruna. I soon found I was getting better and continued taking it for four months. It cleaned out the system, leaving me well and strong and feeling better than I have in years."

Her Discovery.

Husband—Think of it! Here is a hairpin I have found in the soup! Wife—Yes? Now I know where our things have gone. A shoe horn disappeared too!—Harper's Bazar.

Just as Well.

"Statistics show that Japan has two earthquakes a day."

"Gee, a man might as well be married as to live in Japan!"—Houston Post.

A famous Chinese proverb says, "If everything is easy at first."

"I suppose the deacons in your church pass the plate?"

"Yes; they even go so far as to cut it absolutely dead. I've never yet seen any of them put in a cent!"—Puck.

Should Die For Her.

Her—You don't love me! Him—I do. I've just had my life insured, haven't I? Her—Yes, but it would be just like you not to die.—Cleveland Leader.

What is called liberality is most often only the vanity of giving, which we like better than the thing we give.—Rochefoucauld.

Representatives of the different firms tendering for the heating were heard.

Council adjourned until 2 p.m.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

Council met at 2 p.m., pursuant to adjournment.

Dr. Merchants, Chief Inspector of Education, was present, and explained that the Provincial Legislature had enacted a law necessitating the readjustment of the inspection of public schools. The district of Lennox and Addington was an extra large one and he was sure it was impossible for one man to cover the ground and do the work in an efficient manner. He suggested that Lennox and Addington and Frontenac ac combine, appoint an inspector for the north country who will go and live there, study the conditions and do the work required of an inspector.
The division thought of would leave
Lennox and Addington 105 schools,
Frontenac 97 and the north country
77. The maximum salary is $1,700.00 per annum. Half of it is borne by the Province and the other half would be divided between Lennox and Addington and Frontenac, the former's share being about $350.00.

Moved by Mr. Gilmour, seconded by Mr. Kimmery, that the Education and Printing Committee and the Warden confer with a Committee from Frontenac, re adjustment of the inspectorships in these counties.
Carried.

Mr. P. A. Mabey, of Odessa; Dr.
A. W. Benjamin, of Yarker, and Dr.
A. Nesbit, I.P.S., were present and spoke in favor of forming some plan whereby Continuation Classes may be established at points throughout the rural districts.

Regarding the above matter the Provincial Legislature gives the County Council the power of compelling school sections to form themselves into Continuation Class sections.

Mr. Anderson was opposed to compelling the ratepayers of Richmond to form and support a Continuation Class. He was greatly in favor of anything that would tend to the advancement of the education of the children, but he believed in taking the constituents into his confidence and talking the matter over first.

The Committee appointed to look after the tenders for heating the Court House, repeated that they recommend that no action be taken this year. On motion the report was adopted.

Council adjourned until to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock.

(Balance of report next week.)

A FEW HELPS IN SOLVING THE SMALL CHRISTMAS GIFT PROBLEM

GIFTS FOR WOMEN.

Embroidered Belt.—Embroider a strip of cretonne of Persian design with mercerized cotton, to give an oriental effect.

Smelling Salts Bag.—Smelling salts may be made an attractive gift by inclosing in a little linen bag. Make the bottom circular, two inches in diameter. Shirr on to this strip of linen ten inches long, embroider every two inches with a tiny spray, scalloped at the top, and with eyelets to run ribbon or cord for drawstring.

Kerchief Bag.—Take a good sized fancy towel and fold in once in the middle, then sew up the sides within a few inches of the top. Take a small hoop and slip over the towel, turning ends back over it. Sew end down close to hoop, which makes a casing and gathers bag. In the center of towel embroider an initial with colored floss to match ribbon used to tie bag on either side and hang up by. When soiled rip up and if tired of bag the towel can be used in various ways.

Safety Pin Holder.—Two and one-half yards of ribbon, one and one-half or two inches wide, and three rings the size of a 25 cent piece. Buttonhole stitch the rings. Make a pretty bow of the ribbon, any pretty color, leaving three ends hang down to fasten the rings to. Put a chain of safety pins in each ring, of different sizes. This is a pretty gift for a young girl's bedroom, put in a pretty box.

Beauty Bag.—Beauty bags are made by cutting ordinary cheese-cloth into strips, two and a half inches wide by five inches long. Fold over and sew up the side. Fill these with oatmeal and sew up the top of the bag, and you have one of the most healthful cleansers for the skin ever devised. The bags are used as a wash cloth wet in a basin of warm water. A most delightful present is a box of the above beauty bags, daintily overcast or buttonholed with wash silk in delicate colors.

Dress Shield Cover.—A gift for dainty people is to cover dress shields with Indian linen. Cut linen the size of shields, work monogram on them, edge with lace. They are easily taken off when soiled and cover the plainness of the shield.

Hand Embroidered Stockings.—An attractive gift that would be appreciated by sister or friend would be hand embroidered stockings. Buy either silk or silk lisle stockings, whichever you can afford. Rosebuds or forget-me-nots are the prettiest and most simple to work. One skein of green silk for the stems and leaves and two skeins of pink or blue for the flowers is sufficient. Work ten flowers on each stocking, four in the center and three on either side. The embroidering can easily be done without being stamped, but for those not so skillful transfer patterns can be purchased for 10 cents.

the scallops Valenciennes lace was gathered in an easy ruffie (not full). The lining was white china silk, which brought out the colors, making it look like dainty water colors. —M. J. W.

Clothes Coverers.—Every good housekeeper has from one to a dozen calico bags for covering the "best clothes" that hang in the closet—or at least she ought to have. One of the most appreciated gifts received last year was a set of wooden hangers (bought at the 5 and 10 cent store, probably), each hanger having thrown over it a large square of silkoline feather stitched on the four sides. A large eyelet was worked in the middle to slip the square over the hanger, and on each corner of the square hung a tiny sachet bag of the silkoline. What more inexpensive or more appreciated gift could you give a busy housekeeper than a set of these hangers with the throws made of silkoline to match the color of her own room or her guest room?

Black Cat Calendar.—Take a sheet of watercolor paper ten by twelve inches and some scraps of black fur or velvet (fur is far more effective). A little to the left and above the center of the sheet of paper glue an oval piece of the fur about three by two and one-half inches. This is for the body of the cat. Add a smaller piece at the top for the head, attaching two tiny triangular pieces for the ears. Then put two small knobs for the feet and a narrow curving strip for the tail. Glue in two green beads for the eyes and a scrap of red cloth or paper for the tongue. Paste your calendar in the lower right hand corner, and in a scroll issuing from the cat's mouth letter these words: "Some cats there are who sit and squall!"

And make the long night hideous; But if you'll hang me on your wall I'll not be so perfidious." The same idea can be carried out in a match scratcher.

GIFTS FOR MEN.

Book Covers.—A pretty and durable one may be made of Prussian crash in the natural color; cut to hold the average book, allowing three inches at each end to fold back. Buttonhole edge in long and short stitch with brown mercerized cotton or heavy silk; outline any simple conventional design or work monogram on cover; fold ends back, tack at top and bottom, and your gift is ready.

Coat Cover.—Take a wire hanger and pad with cotton on both sides, with a little favorite sachet sprinkled on it. Then whip together two pieces of white satin ribbon about three inches wide and cover the padded hanger, then wrap the handle with ribbon and tie a large bow. Also take two lengths of about one and one-half yards of white linen. Shape opening so it can be slipped over the hanger. Bring stick the

GREAT ENGLISH SURVEY

RE-VALUATION OF ALL THE LAND IN THE KINGDOM.

How Edward VII. May Imitate William I.—Will be a Great Undertaking.

One of the provisions of the new English budget is that there shall be a grand survey and re-valuation of all the land in the kingdom. The last great survey of the kind was made by William the Conqueror, shortly after the Battle of Hastings, so that it has stood for about 850 years. And William's famous survey was all incorporated in the celebrated "Domesday Book," which now lies in the record office, in Chancery Lane, London, England. OF VERY GREAT VALUE.

The immense value of the "Domesday Book" has always been recognized by the state, and it has ever been jealously guarded. There are two volumes of it; the first has 382 pages, and the second 450. All these are double pages, written on vellum, in small handwriting, which is nevertheless, fairly plain, even after all this lapse of years.

No other country possesses anything like this wonderful "Domesday Book," as a record of its size, estates, resources, etc., of nearly 1,000 years ago. The book is unique and priceless; and George III. so well saw this that he ordered reprints to be made of it, so that if it ever became destroyed by accident its contents might not be lost. Queen Victoria went even further. She ordered that every two pages of it separately should be reproduced, just as they stood, by photozincography, that the country might have exact copies of every bit of it in the event of any unfortunate accident to the original.

THE LAST WORD.

The survey of the land has been England's guide and standard of right and wrong with regard to ownership for over 800 years. In all disputes concerning these questions the authority of the "Domesday Book" has been taken, and accepted by the judges and law officials as the last word. The famous record gives the name of the owner of each manor at the time the survey was taken; also, who held it before him, in the Confessor's reign; how many hides were on the land; how many ploughs in the demesne; how many villeins, or servants of the lord; how many cottages, and how many farmers as tenants; how many household retainers; how much woodland and pasture; the number of mills and streams; and the then estimated value of the estate.

CHANGES IN VALUES.

Incomes have fluctuated in a manner never dreamt of for a moment by the bequeathers of the land which produces the income. Thus, the value of the benefice of Stanhope—a very small village in Durham—has risen to something like £2,000, owing to the rise of great coalfields upon the land which provides the money; whilst a fine canary at Peterborough, which ought now to be worth £1,000, has fallen to about £400, owing to the decline of the value of pasture-land, etc.

In the same way, it is certain that

GIFTS FOR GRANDMOTHER.

Dainty Collar.—A dainty collar of insertion, edged top and bottom with narrow lace and circled by a narrow velvet lavender ribbon, looped into a rosette at the back.

Apron.—A black silk apron either china or messaline, rounded off at the bottom, and edged with black lace, or left square and hemmed and brier stitched, and the pocket the same; or a lace inserted apron, is pretty; the above would certainly make any grandma open her eyes on Christmas day.

Covers for Dainty Waists.—Get a remnant of figured silk, make a square (the length you will have to decide for yourself), cut a circle in the center large enough to fit the collar of the waist, put a finishing touch on all edges, of narrow lace. Rosettes of baby ribbon on the corners will add to this dainty little gift, which will save many a delicate waist.

Lace Headdress.—A dainty little lace head dress, white, with lavender ribbon trimming, a fancy box for her dresser, a Christmas letter tied with holly ribbon, will brighten her lonely "day of memories."

A framed picture of children playing or some beloved animal pet will delight the little sick child; a five kitten or puppy, always proves a pleasure; a blooming plant, for the "shut-in."

Select Presents with Care.—"Don't give old people presents that savor too much of old age." This is a warning, that has to be sounded every Christmas to those who are under the impression that because grandmother is old she has no sense of the beautiful, but delights in black satin aprons, felt slippers, and the like. You can't please grandmother more than by presenting her with things suggestive of youth, yet practical enough to be of use to her. For instance, make dainty white underwear, such as corset covers, petticoats, chemises, or, if she is a shut-in, a simple band embroidered night gown or a pretty dressing sacque or a long-sleeved robe. Or, if she keeps house, make cheerful, pretty things for her home, at the same time bearing in mind that gifts must be simple as well as pretty so that their care will not necessitate a lot of extra work. Then, too, one could give candy and flowers cut or in pots, in fact, there are innumerable things to give grandmother that will make her feel happy and young again. That's the true Christmas spirit for the old—make them feel happy and young again.

GIFTS FOR GIRLS.

Buffet Set.—I have just finished a buffet set which has been greatly admired. They were oval in shape. The larger piece was eighteen inches and I used fine sheer white Swiss and drew sprays of wild roses with leaves over them, worked them in shadow embroidery, in two shades of pink for the roses and two shades of green for the leaves (not dark). The centers were worked on right side in French knots with yellow and light green. The edge was scalloped in white silk, and around and pad with cotton on both sides, with a little favorite sachet sprinkled on it. Then whip together two pieces of white satin ribbon about three inches wide and cover the padded hanger, then wrap the handle with ribbon and tie a large bow. Also take two lengths of about one and one-half yards of white linen. Shape opening so it can be slipped over the hanger. Brier stitch the seams and in the left hand corner embroider a monogram. This is to be slipped over the garment on the coat hanger to keep out dust and avoid creasing. This makes a pretty gift.

Shirt Case.—Case made of brown linen to fold like an envelope and cross stitch the initial on the lap makes a pretty gift. It takes one yard of linen, a sponge case (or pocket) of brown linen and lined with rubber cloth and the initial cross stitched on the lap, bind it with linen tape or wash ribbon.

Emergency Bag.—A practical, inexpensive easily made gift for a man is an "emergency bag," much appreciated by a traveler or roomer. Materials required: Piece of leather any size you wish to make bag, pins and needles, pair embroidery scissors, dozer collar buttons, dozen trouser buttons, dozen toe protectors, black, white and brown thread. Any man is domestic enough to use one. Easily carried and can be made plain or ornamental, as the maker desires. On each pocket could be picture of article it contains done in burnt work.

Shaving Bibs.—Towels are a bother for protecting a man's shirt while he shaves, so make him a Christmas present of a couple of shaving bibs. To make one, take any kind of washable material—heavy white goods preferred—cut in two pieces, the front piece long enough so that if a man sits while shaving it will cover his lap; the back piece can be shorter. Cut out a hole for the neck, large enough for the head to slip through. Cut the shoulder seams curved to fit the shoulder and wide enough to amply cover it. Sew together; hem all around; face the neck, and through the facing draw narrow elastic. When slipped over the head this will fit close to the neck and prevent the lather from running down under the shirt. The bib can be further embellished by stitching the phrase, "To shield your shirt while you shave," across the front.

Sleeping Cap.—A sleeping cap or hood is an acceptable gift for a man who likes to sleep with open windows in winter or in an "open air" bedroom. It is also useful in sleeping car berths. Make the cap of heavy black silk, which is soft and warm. The cap should be cut and fitted like a girl's hood and fastened with a strap of the goods under the chin, using a button or patent clasp. Use a pattern of a Brownie hood, but cut off the point and insert a straight strip three or four inches wide between the side pieces from forehead to nape of neck. Finish edges and seams with soft binding ribbon.

Mr. William Tait, who for twenty-six years was steward of the King's show and Flemish farms at Windsor, died in Scotland recently. His father was steward of the royal farms before him for twenty-four years.

Having had one of its legs broken by being run over, a cander belonging to Mr. S. Barton, of Brampton, Cumberland, has been supplied with a wooden leg, and follows the rest of the geese about the farm with ease.

More than 5,250,000 herrings were landed by fishing boats at Grimsby in one day recently. Fishermen of Moray Firth have had such a good season that one sailing boat has earned $5,000 in four months, and a steamboat took $500 a week for seventeen weeks.

CELLULOID BOOMERANGS.

Used by Experts in America—Also Made of Cardboard.

The Skill of the Australian bushmen in boomerang throwing is not exaggerated in the least, for the boomerang wielded by an expert is a thing of magic. It will soar through the air like a bird, now high up, now just skimming the surface of the ground, turning in circles, finally falling just where it has been aimed to fall.

The boomerang can be fashioned of ash or hickory, says a writer in St. Nicholas, but can also be cut or stamped out of celluloid and hard rubber. Several expert throwers in America have fashioned their own boomerangs not only of celluloid but of heavy cardboard.

If the cardboard does not get wet it makes a serviceable missile. Celluloid is excellent for the purpose, because it is light, very hard to break and can be worked into the peculiar curve and twist which are so necessary to give the boomerang its force and direction.

AN ISLAND OF DESOLATION.

Kerguelen, a No Man's Land—Belongs to France.

It is very seldom we get news from Kerguelen, the "Island of Desolation," midway between South Africa and Australia. A French ship that spent fifteen months there has just arrived in Melbourne loaded with oil extracted from a thousand sea-elephants. Part of her cargo she cast overboard. She literally threw oil on the troubled waters. Her captain says he never experienced such frightful weather and he would not go through it again for "his weight in gold." He reports that the island is overrun with rabbits, the progeny of a few let loose by a British warship in 1874. He did some exploring work and found indications of gold and coal. Kerguelen belongs to France by right of discovery, but it is practically a no-man's land.

Durham—has risen to something like £2,000, owing to the rise of great coalfields upon the land which provides the money; whilst a fine canary at Peterborough, which ought now to be worth £1,000, has fallen to about £400, owing to the decline of the value of pasture-land, etc.

In the same way, it is certain that vast estates are much under-assessed now-a-days with regard to their true value; and, indeed, many of them are still paying on their value recorded in the "Domesday Book" of 800 years ago! But it is only fair to state that money then was far more valuable in actual worth than now, since one of our pennies to-day represents but about a seventh of what a penny did then.

WILL TAKE MANY YEARS.

However, we are probably now to have a brand new survey of all the land. What this means may be better understood when you learn that it is expected to cost over £2,000,000 to carry out, and that it will take several years from its start ere it can possibly be completed, despite the large number of men who will be engaged in it, and their great ability. For the most exact measurements and details must be taken of every estate. There must be no question afterwards about the accuracy, exactness or detail of this new "Domesday Book," any more than there has been about the old one. It will undoubtedly stand for centuries in future as the absolute authority on the subject of British land, and all disputes will be settled by it, without demur.

REVEY SOME NEW PROFESSIONS

THE UP-TO-DATE METHODS OF EARNING A LIVING.

Consulting Dressmaker is One — Professional Diner Attracts Customers.

Modern life has brought the specialist to the front to such an extent that it has been stated that only the person who specializes can expect to achieve success. It is the new wants and needs brought about by modern life which have brought into existence many curious ways of earning a livelihood.

These professions are to be found amongst all classes. Thus, in the fashionable world there has been an innovation in the shape of the "consulting dressmaker." This specialist advises her clients with regard to the apparel which is most suited to them. The consulting dressmaker resembles the London consulting physician, inasmuch as she has special fees, and these are always paid at the consultation. The terms are not too high, being $2.50 for a consultation lasting one hour, during which time any number of garments may be discussed. The initial fee covers a second visit, or even a third if necessary, to see the articles tried on and finished. The consulting dressmaker goes farther than this, as she will accompany her clients to their dressmakers to

For the same fee she will undertake to do their shopping.

Quite a new occupation for ladies is that of "professional chaperon." The necessity for this profession has been brought about by the great demand for chaperons evidenced by solitary lady visitors to good hotels. The profession provides an opening for women of refinement and intelligence who are willing to place themselves at the service of such hotel guests as do not care to go about alone.

Recently the "professional diner" has come into prominence. Some of the first-class restaurants provide free meals and a certain sum of money to a well-dressed gentleman of elegant appearance and distinguished manners, who tend to attract customers. In the same way many tailors provide such gentlemen with free outfits, and a commission, for wearing and recommending their clothes.

A profession has been initiated which provides "tips" to prospective prisoners. A copy of a letter which was received by the defendant in a remand case, before one of the London police-courts, will make clear the methods followed. The letter runs: "In case you are convicted and sentenced to imprisonment, you will be all the better off for entering upon your sentence knowing the ins and outs of prison treatment and discipline, knowing what you have to expect and

CONSUMPTION CRUSADE.

South Dublin People Want Lady Aberdeen to Stop.

A remarkable discussion in reference to Lady Aberdeen's organized movement and speeches against tuberculosis in Ireland took place recently at a meeting of the South Dublin Board of Guardians, at which the following resolution was adopted:—

"That we respectfully ask Her Excellency the Countess of Aberdeen to discontinue her consumption crusade, as to continue such a course would have a very serious effect on the country, as well as on the tourist traffic, on which a great number of the poor people in the country districts have to depend for a living.

"Her Excellency will at once see what an effect it may have on strangers when they are told that the country needs such action on the part of the Viceroy's wife."

Mr. John Raymond, moving the resolution, said he desired to see consumption wiped out as much as her Excellency, but there were instances in the city of men being deprived of their employment in consequence of all that had been said in connection with this crusade, carried on by the people who were the tools of the British Government. There was a factory in the city where, in consequence of the crusade, people were losing their employment daily if it became known that they had the faintest taint of consumption.

Mr. Anderson, who seconded the resolution, said that Irish girls would not be employed as servants in England owing to the effect of this crusade.

Mr. Mullett also said that such crusades were detrimental to Irish people. An Irish girl in London could not now get a situation if she had a pale face.

The Chairman (Mr. John Scully, J. P.), said the board, instead of passing the resolution, should give Lady Aberdeen every assistance. He considered they owed her a debt of gratitude for all she had done since she came to the country. As to the tourist question, he was of opinion there was never so large an influx of visitors as this year.

Twenty-three voted for the resolution, and eleven against.

The members who voted do not number half the membership of the board.

GOOD ROADS ARE VALUABLE.

Farmers Will Find Them a Paying Investment.

The state board of agriculture reports that the winter wheat crop, the largest and best paying on record, has brought the Illinois farmers $22,000,000. For this year's oat crop they will receive $38,000,000. The condition of the corn crop at the beginning of the month was much above what it was last year, while there was an increase in acreage of 51,600 acres. Every bushel harvested will command a good price, says the Chicago Tribune.

The farmers can make no better use of a part of the money which the beneficence of nature and their own industry has brought them than in improving their roads. They have cleared off their mortgages. They do not feel the burden of taxation as they did once. They can afford to engage extensively in the

MOHAMMED ALI WEPT FROM ERIN'S GREEN ISLE

SAD SCENES WHEN HE WAS LEAVING TEHERAN.

Will Take Up His Residence at Odessa—Queen Dreads Life Among the Unclean.

Despatches from Teheran to some of the English papers give an account of the melancholy scene at the Russian legation when the deposed Shah was preparing to leave his capital, probably forever. While the cortege was forming which was to escort them from Teheran, the Shah and his Queen, sitting in separate rooms gave free vent to their grief and rage, Mohammed Ali making no attempt to hide his tears.

Sitting on the floor around the Queen were her mother, the Hazretie Olia, a dignified statue of grief, and two ladies-in-waiting, while her father, Kamran Mirza, who was suffering from gout, was propped up in an armchair. To this family scene two European ladies, old acquaintances of her Majesty, were admitted.

THE PETULANT QUEEN.

Mohammed Ali, coming into the room, said to one of them: "You see, madam, to what pitch things have come!" The lady replied, with a flood of Persian compliments, with the idea of encouraging their Majesties. She pointed out that they were both in good health, that they had the consolation of seeing her son reigning over Persia, and their other son the heir to the throne, and that a journey to Europe would do them both an immense amount of good.

At this the Queen could no longer control her anger. She burst out: "Oh, the scoundrels! Oh, the sons of burnt fathers! They want to send me to Europe to live among the unclean! If I happen to die, who will wash my corpse! Those unclean hands! No! Never, never!"

"But what would have happened to your Majesty and the Shah had not the Faranghis (Europeans) taken you under their protection?" said one of the ladies. The Queen would only reply: "I will go to Kerbeia, Najeff, or some other place, but I will not live among the unclean."

"Will you, then, leave the Shah alone after all the trouble he has passed through?" "I do not care," was the pettish answer.

Mohammed Ali, Shah, was so annoyed at this that he left the room.

IN THE STATE CARRIAGE.

Early in the afternoon the fourteen waggons of the ex-Shah's caravan were being hurriedly loaded. Outside the Russian Legation a big crowd gathered to see the show. About ten minutes to four the Sephalsar (the ex-War Minister) came out of the Legation, followed by others of the Shah's retinue.

He stopped and addressed the Persian Cossacks, saying: "I am going. God will take care of you." Some of the Cossacks answered, "God be with you." A voice from the crowd said: "Pity you did not follow the Sheikh Fazlulla," (who was hanged by the Nationalists on July 31).

At 4 o'clock there was a great stir made inside the Legation. A

INCREASE OF CRIMINALS.

England Face to Face With perplexing Situation.

A remarkable increase in criminal offences is the feature of the report of the British Commissioners of Prisons and the Directors of Convict Prisons for the year ending March last. And this is shown to be the case not only in the actual number of convictions, but on the basis of population of England and Wales.

Here is a table of convictions for the past two years (in the year ending March, 1907, the total was 178,343):

	1906-9.	1907-8.
Offences against person	1,410	1,374
Offences against property	7,995	7,512
Other offences	205	205
Summary cases—
Indictable	21,710	20,886
Others	153,678	146,625

Totals 184,901 176,602
On the basis of 100,000 population the number of convictions in the year 1906-9 was 523.1, as against 505.4 in the previous year.

One result of the increase was that a great strain was put upon the cellular accommodation at the prisons. The average number in custody in local prisons for the year was 18,923, the high numbers being continuous throughout the year, which was the more remarkable considering that the new law granting remissions on sentences of over a month instead of six months was in operation. So far as criminal offences are concerned, there was an increased reception of about 5,000 prisoners. The great majority of these were received on summary conviction, the only marked increase in offences tried on indictment being 496 against property. This increase was spread generally throughout the country, no fewer than 36 out of 57 prisons showing an increased number on the previous year. A notable increase was shown in the South Wales district at Cardiff, Carmarthen, and Swansea; in the Northern district at Wakefield, Leeds, Hull, Knutsford, Lincoln, Northallerton, and in the Midlands at Bedford, Birmingham, Nottingham and Worcester.

In after years a man wishes he was half as smart as he used to think he was.

The farmers can make no better use of a part of the money which the beneficence of nature and their own industry has brought them than in improving their roads. They have cleared off their mortgages. They do not feel the burden of taxation as they did once. They can afford to engage extensively in the construction of good roads. They could not make a better investment—one which would yield them more enduring returns.

They will get a good price for this year's crop, but their profits would be greater if the cost of moving them to the railroad stations were reduced as it would be if they had roads over which they could transport their products at the minimum of cost during any season. When the roads are impassable, as they are sometimes in many parts of Illinois, the farmer who has held back part of his produce, as so many are doing now, finds it impossible to take advantage of a sudden upturn in the market.

The gospel of good roads has been preached to the Illinois farmers for several years, but to comparatively little purpose. Now that they are doing so well it should make an impression on them.

SCIENTIFIC INGENUITY.

Burmese Implement for Producing Fire.

One day a Burmese messenger brought me a note. While he was waiting for the reply I observed an object something like a boy's popgun suspended around his waist. On asking what it was, he showed me that it was an implement for producing fire. It was a rude example of a scientific implement employed by lectures at home to illustrate the production of heat by suddenly compressed air. A piston fitted into the tube. The former was hollowed at the lower end and smeared with wax to receive a piece of cotton or tinder, which when pressed into it adhered. The tube was closed at one end. Placing the piston at the top of the tube, with a smart blow he struck it down and immediately withdrew it with the tinder on fire, the sudden compression of the air having ignited it. I was so much struck with the scientific ingenuity of this rude implement that I procured it from the Burman and sent it to the Asiatic Society of Bengal with a short description of its uses.—Recollections of My Life by Surgeon-General Sir John Fayer.

THE WRONG MAN.

French Woman Threw Vitrol in His Face.

A woman was tried in Paris last week for throwing vitrol in the face of a man whom she did not know, but had mistaken for her recreant lover. The victim lost the sight of one eye, but a Paris jury acquitted the woman. Afterward she and her lover were reconciled. After recounting these facts, a sarcastic writer demands:

"What of it? The case has been judged. Everybody, of course, ought to be satisfied." He suggests, however, that the streets be placarded thus: "Beware of deserted women," and also, "Beware throwing vitrol, be sure it's the right man."

Going. God will take care of you." Some of the Cossacks answered, "God be with you." A voice from the crowd said: "Pity you did not follow the Sheikh Fazlulla," (who was hanged by the Nationalists on July 31).

At 4 o'clock there was a great stir made inside the Legation. A state carriage, drawn by six white horses, was brought forward, and Mohammed Ali, dressed in black, looking very pale, came out of his apartments. All those present bowed before him, and his Majesty very graciously returned the salute.

SURROUNDED BY BEGGARS.

Before the procession had gone more than a few yards the ex-Shah saw Sir George Barclay, the British Minister. He stopped the carriage, made a sign for Sir George to approach, and addressed to him some words of thanks.

As the caravan again set out there was a great confusion. The ex-Shah's carriage was surrounded by hundreds of beggars, to whom he distributed silver coins. On reaching the main road the procession was properly formed, with Persian and Russian Cossacks and Indian Lancers, the carriages of the British and Russian diplomatic representatives, and those of Mohammed Ali's retinue, and of the Queen and her ladies.

The public in the streets were greatly astonished at the respect paid by the Europeans to the de-throned Shah and the dignity with which he was escorted on his long journey to his new abode at Odesa.

AN ELEPHANT'S SAGACITY.

An incident which demonstrated the sagacity with which elephants are endowed occurred at Old Meldrum, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, recently, on the occasion of a visit of a circus to the town. At the conclusion of a children's performance an elephant proceeded along a narrow road with a pail in its trunk for the purpose of procuring water from a pump. A little girl chanced to get in the animal's way, and the road being only wide enough to accommodate his substantial body the elephant laid down the pail, picked up the child with his trunk and gently lifted her to a place of safety, afterward resuming his journey to the pump for the water.

INSURANCE FOR SPINSTERS.

In Copenhagen a well known artist, Mme. Wiehe-Berney, has had the idea of founding an insurance company which should draw its clients only from women. These ladies are to pay a decent premium against the possibility of finding no husband. Should any of the insured ladies marry before they are 40 years of age they lose all the money they paid in. This, of course, would benefit the other policy holders of the insurance company. After reaching 40 years of age every woman who is insured shall receive an income for life, the extent of which will be determined by premiums which are available.

Money comes in handy when we find it difficult to get our hands on it.

The only way to get something for nothing is to start a fight about it.

to certain facts mentioned by a writer in the current number of the Indian Forester bearing upon the evolution of the forest tiger's taste, first for cattle and then for human meat.

When tired of the monotony of the menu provided by deer or wild pig the forest tiger develops a taste for domestic cattle, and then its modus operandi is very interesting study. The venue is changed from deep forest to cattle breeding area, where the tiger leisurely carries on its depredations until shot—an operation which, however it might shock Mr. Rees, is one of the most beneficent acts of the sportsman.

As a writer in the Indian Forester says, the transition from cattle slaying to man slaying is not a great step. Where cattle abound human beings are, and once the tiger has tasted human meat it develops an extraordinary passion for it. And so it must have its daily feed. It goes anywhere in search of food.

Many years ago a tiger swam the Rangoon River, nearly a mile in width, and landed in the heart of the locality, crept under the raised floor of a Burman hut and was promptly slaughtered.

About six years ago a large tiger was observed on the platform of the Shwe-Dogan pagoda at Rangoon and was shot by a party of soldiers told off for the purpose. The superstitious Burmese attributed the outbreak of plague in Rangoon to the shooting of this tiger, which they declared was some particular manifestation of the Buddha. It is a curious fact, however, that the plague outbreak occurred shortly afterward, and the city has not since been free of the scourge.

TURTLE WORSHIP.

At a place called Kotron on the French Ivory Coast the natives believe that to eat or destroy a turtle would mean death to the guilty one or sickness among the family, says the London Globe. The fetish men, of whom there are plenty, declare that years ago a man went to sea fishing. In the night his canoe was thrown upon the beach empty. Three days afterward a turtle came ashore at the same place with the man on its back alive and well. Since that time they have never eaten or destroyed one of that species, although they enjoy other species. If one happens now to be washed ashore there is a great commotion in the town. First the women sit down and start singing and beating sticks, next a small piece of white cloth (color must be white) is placed on the turtle's back. Food is then prepared and placed on the cloth, generally plantains, rice and palm oil. Then amid a lot more singing, dancing and antics of the fetish people it is carried back into the sea and goes on its way rejoicing.

ROYAL BIRTHS IN SCOTLAND.

Among all their palaces and castles it is Balmoral that the royal family have always looked upon as their home. Around it cluster the most pleasing recollections of their childhood and early manhood and womanhood. It was there that the present Queen of Spain and her brother Maurice were born. It is an interesting fact to remember that until the Queen of Spain was born there had not been a royal birth in Scotland for nearly 300 years—not, in fact, since Charles I. was born at Dunfermline in 1600.

Sentence on James Robinson on Three Charges to Which He Pleaded Guilty.

A despatch from Sudbury says: James Robinson was on Friday afternoon acquitted of the charge of murder, in having assisted in the slaying of a child born to him by a young daughter, but was sentenced to twenty-eight years imprisonment in Kingston Penitentiary on other charges to which he had pleaded guilty, while the jury were deliberating on the capital crime.
Justice Magee in imposing sentence, said: "You appear before me confessing guilt of the most horrible crimes conceivable in a Christian country, and you have shown a nature so entirely devoid of any sense of morality or right, or care of your offspring and the decency of Christian society; that it is difficult for me to say anything to you. I hope it will never again be paralleled in Canada."

His lordship then sentenced Robinson to twenty-eight years, divided, fourteen years for incest against Ellen, his daughter; fourteen years for incest against his daughter Jessie, to begin at conclusion of first sentence, and twenty-eight years for rape of his daughter Maggie, to run concurrently with other sentences.
As Robinson is a man of fifty, the sentence is virtually a life sentence. He listened to the judge, with bowed head and sank back to his seat dazed, burying his face in his hands.

YOUNG FOLKS

THE HUNTER.

Ever since Robbie Evans was old enough to tease for the story of "Jack, the Giant-Killer," he had wanted to do something which other boys of his age could not do. He longed to do some great deed of bravery, that would make his family very proud of him.

When he was seven years old Uncle Sam gave him a new, shiny red bow gun, and he thought the time had come for action.

He did not expect to kill a giant—Uncle Sam said there were none; that is, any wild ones.

But he did think he might shoot a panther, or possibly a gorilla. He was sure if he looked about carefully he could find some wonderful game.

So he proudly shouldered the new, red bow gun, took half a dozen of the very sharpest-pointed arrows, and started over the hill to the poplar grove.

The leaves had turned from green to yellow, and how black the old pine stumps looked through them!

How strange it seemed! The rustling carpet of dried yellow leaves was not half as pretty as the soft grass and moss that covered the ground in summer, and he could not find even one bunchberry to tell of the starry white blossoms of the spring-time.

"If I could only kill a panther now—no, I mean, if I could only see one, course I could kill it if I found it," thought brave Robbie.

Then, as he stepped over a fallen log, an animal sprang up with a terrible hiss.

His heart stood still and he looked at the crouching animal. The eyes blazed, and were fastened upon him in apparent anger or terror.

"It's just the color Uncle Sam said that cougar was out West," Robbie thought, with a look at its sleek coat, "and it's got a head just like a cat, O dear! But it's too big for a cat, O dear-me!"
Poor Robbie! He was not quite

"Where did you find Aunt Mary's cat? She will be so glad," cried mother.

"Is—is that her cat?" panted Robbie.

"Of course it is. There isn't another cat like him in Maine. See what a beautiful yellow coat he has. He is the largest pussy I ever saw," and mother took him in her arms to find a basket to send him to Aunt Mary.

"I think he is big," answered Robbie, truthfully, "but I never knew cats were that color."

His voice was beginning to be steady again.

And then he walked slowly back to find the new, red bow gun, and he sat on the fallen log a while to think about it.—Youth's Companion.

CONSTABLE SHOOT INDIAN.

Was Arresting Three Redskins for Disorderly Conduct.

A despatch from Brantford says: While arresting three young Indians, who were disorderly at the pagan council house late Saturday night, near Ohsweken, Dominion Constable David Garlow shot and injured Curtis Martin, an Indian, who, it is claimed, attacked him with a fence rail, endeavoring to prevent the arrest of his friends. Garlow had been called by Chief General to put a stop to the disturbance. The constable was arrested here on Sunday after he had delivered his prisoners at the local jail. He said he first shot into the ground, and when Martin approached closer, shot at his legs. One bullet took effect in the left ankle and the other in the right knee. Garlow is a man of powerful physique, and his arrest is on the ground that the shooting was unnecessary.

MARTIANS ALL DESTROYED.

Gloomy Yellow Veil Indicates Gigantic Catastrophe.

A despatch from London says: The Journal of the British Astronomical Association, referring to the changes observed in Mars in September, says these phenomena are unparalleled in past records. The obliteration of the markings on the surface of the planet by a gloomy yellow veil indicates some catastrophe on a gigantic scale, some cataclysm which dwarfs the most violent Tellurian earthquake. May be the abnormal electrical conditions of the sun, which, according to Sir Oliver Lodge, the noted scientist, caused the recent magnetic storm on the earth, had a far more terrible influence on Mars. They may have unloosed forces, which, if Prof. Lowell's theory concerning life on Mars is correct, may have ended forever the Martians' struggle for life.

THINKS MARS SAFE.

A despatch from Washington says: Prof. Ashap Hall of the Naval Observatory is of the opinion that no great change has recently occurred in the planet Mars. The planet is no closer to the earth than it has been for fifteen years, and Prof. Hall has been making frequent observations of its approaches. Prof. Hall has noted the unusual season marked by melting snow, but he does not believe that any disturbance of an extraordinary sort has affected Mars or that sun spots have registered their mark on the planet.

FORGER SWINDLES BANK.

American Operates on Imperial in Nelson, B. C.

A despatch from Nelson, B. C., says: The Imperial Bank here has been swindled out of $2,000 by a slick American forger, who gave the name of John Woolton. The matter has been kept quiet for some time in the hope of catching the criminal, but the facts are now public. Woolton came here from Seattle, was introduced by a local rancher named H. S. Johnstone and deposited a certified check on a Seattle bank for $2,000. He drew $100 at once and shortly afterwards $1,900, the latter for payment for a fruit ranch he said he had purchased. Then he went to Rossland and was traced to Revelstoke, from which point he travelled east and disappeared. The bank was advised from Seattle that the certifying stamp was forged and the check worthless. In Woolton's grip, found at Rossland by the police, were a number of stamps for use in marking checks, and it is thought that Woolton was one of a gang who have done some extensive swindling in the west lately.

Three things he was quite sure of—that the animal was following him closely—he could hear its feet pattering over the dry leaves, that the way home never was so long before, and that he wanted to see his mother.

He reached the top of the hill at last, and fairly flew down the other side. What a long time it took to reach the orchard, where John was picking the fall apples.

The total customs receipts for the month just ended were $5,236,737, an increase of $920,263. For the seven months of the fiscal year the total customs revenue has been $34,017,806, an increase of $6,838,614, or nearly $1,000,000 a month as compared with the corresponding period of last year. The rising tide of imports consequent upon the recovery from the trade depression of last year shows no sign of ebbing, and indications point to an increase of about $12,000,000 in customs revenue alone for the present fiscal year.

TO FIGHT THE HOOKWORM

John D. Rockefeller Has Given One Million Dollars.

A despatch from New York says: A gift of $1,000,000 by John D. Rockefeller to fight the hook-worm disease was announced at the offices of the Standard Oil Company here late on Thursday. A dozen well-known educators and scientists, selected in large part from institutions of learning in the south, where the parasite is prevalent, were called in conference with Mr. Rockefeller's representatives last Tuesday, and as a result of the discussion of the situation the Rockefeller Commission for the Eradication of the Hook-worm Disease was organized.

The hook-worm, which, it is believed, was imported from Africa with the negroes, lives in the human intestinal tract and feeds upon blood which it draws from the mucous lining of the tract. The parasite often so lowers the vitality of those who are affected as to retard their physical and mental development, render them more susceptible to other diseases, make labor less efficient, and in the sections where the malady is most prevalent greatly increases the death rate from consumption, pneumonia, typhoid fever and malaria. It has been shown that the lowered vitality of multitudes long attributed to malaria and climate and seriously affecting economic development is, in fact, largely due in some districts to this parasite. Some two millions of the people of the United States are infected with the parasite, and these are by no means confined to any one class. The toll of suffering and death is taken from the intelligent well-to-do as well as from the less fortunate.

SOME STRIKING FIGURES

Decrease of Nearly 4,000 Hotel Licenses in Ontario in Thirty Years.

A despatch from Toronto says: Ontario is making rapid progress towards temperance, according to the official figures of the Provincial License Department.

This year there are in all 2,328 liquor licenses throughout the Province, of which 2,010 are tavern, 253 are shop, 25 are wholesale, and 42 club licenses. In 1874—thirty-five years ago—there were 6,155 licenses in the Province, and the decrease has been steady, year by year, until the present figures have been reached. The annual decrease has been specially marked during the past five years.

There are now 195 municipalities in the Province under local option, and 149 in which licenses are not issued on Government policy. The local option municipalities include 91, in which the by-law was carried under the three-fifths clause.

In 334 of the total 806 municipalities in Ontario prohibition consequently obtains, the percentage being an unusually large one. If temperance sentiment continues to grow in proportion to the past five years only the largely populated centres will be able to secure licenses under the act.

Good lots of fat hogs, 8½ to 8¾c per lb.

Stockers and feeders were active, one load of Manitoba feeders selling at $4.50, the highest price of the season. Milkers and springers were strong. Sheep were steady and lambs firmer, a few extra choice lambs selling up to $5.90. Hogs, $7.60 was paid in one or two instances, and $7.85, fed and watered, for selects.

A despatch from Gimli, Man., says: At 5 o'clock on Saturday night a Galician farmer came to town with the report that a woman and two children had been killed in a fight at a farmhouse about six miles north of the town on Saturday afternoon. As far as can be learned at present, a German who was visiting at a Galician home got into a fight with a Galician, and, after battering him up badly, chased him out of the house. The Galician stayed out in the bush until he saw the German leave, and on returning to the house found his wife and two children had been killed. The names of the parties have not been received.

Gigantic Ship-building Concern for Halifax.

A despatch from Montreal says: Clarence I. Beyond that, he could not go. It was learned, however, from another source that preparations were being made at Halifax for application to Ottawa for a charter for a company capitalized at $10,000,000 and that the scheme of this company was most comprehensive. A gentleman in close touch with the situation stated that the Government's intentions in the matter would not be announced until the opening of Parliament. The proposal in question was not the only one with which the Government would have to deal.

PETITIONS FOR CLEMENCY.

Hundred Thousand Persons Want to Save Mrs. Robinson.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The clerks of the Department of Justice who have been struggling with the flood of letters and post cards pouring in during the past fortnight praying for clemency for Mrs. Robinson, who is under sentence to be hanged at Sudbury next month, estimate that over 100,000 persons have now been heard from. The case will come before the Cabinet Council in the regular way as soon as the Minister of Justice has considered the report of the trial Judge and the full report of the evidence.

OUR TRADE WITH FRANCE.

Likely to Improve When Trade Treaty Becomes Effective.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Franco-Canadian steamship service, which the Allan Line has been performing, is likely to be greatly improved in consequence of the improvement in trade which is expected to follow the French Treaty becoming effective. At present the contract calls for fifteen round trips a year for a subsidy of two hundred thousand dollars. The contract is expiring, but will likely be renewed with the same company on the basis of a fortnightly service.

It is reported that Mr. Hugh Allan, President of the Allan Line, will reside in Glasgow.

THE STREAM OF WHEAT.

Enormous Volume Pouring Down to Lake Front.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: Inspector Gibbs of Fort William has compiled some interesting data as to the receipts of cars at the lake terminals this season, compared with 1908. From September 1 to Oct. 21, 21,771 cars of wheat, 2,050 cars of oats, 1,022 cars of barley, and 104 cars of flax reached the waterfront, making a grand total of 25,196 cars, against 15,884 for the same period in 1908. Of these cars, the C. P. R. carried 16,702, an increase over last year of 69 per cent., and the C. N. R. 8,494 cars, an increase of 41 per cent. over last year. Of this enormous total of cars, only 614 were consigned to King's elevator, which is known as the hospital elevator. This speaks volumes for the condition of the crop.

MAN BURNED TO DEATH.

Supposed He Set Fire to His Bed While Smoking.

A despatch from Quebec says: A railway laborer named Irvine, said to be an Englishman, aged about 45 years, who recently came to this country, was burned to death on Thursday evening in his boarding house, kept by Mrs. O'Connor, St. James street, Lower Town. The fire originated in the attic room, which Irvine occupied, and it is presumed that, lying down on his bed to smoke, he fell asleep and set fire to the bed, that soon enveloped the upper parts of the house in flames. The fire brigade, however, soon subdued the fire, which gutted the upper portion of the building, and the charred remains of Irvine were found later.

NEXT GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

It is Thought Earl Crewe Will be Chosen.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The cabled announcement from London that Canada's next governor-general is likely to be a member of the Asquith cabinet is taken in well-informed circles here to refer to the present colonial secretary, Earl Crewe. It is believed here that he would be the most likely first choice of the imperial government, as successor to Earl Grey, if he desires the position. Earl Crewe is a son-in-law of Lord Rosebery, and even if the Unionist party should come into power next year in Great Britain, the colonial secretary would probably still be a not improbable choice for the Canadian governorship. His appointment or that of Lord Morley, who is also mentioned for the position, would be well received here.

HAD TO BE TWICE RESCUED.

Mrs. Marriott, of St. Thomas, in Burning House.

A despatch from St. Thomas says: Mrs. Anna Marriott, an aged lady, who lives alone, was rescued from her burning home early on Friday morning by Joseph W. Grice, a Wabash engineer, who when on his way to work, saw the fire. Mrs. Marriott had started the fire by accidentally upsetting a lamp, and then, frightened, had crawled under the bed. After being rescued, and while Mr. Grice was sending in an alarm, Mrs. Mar-

CUT OFFICER WITH KNIFE

Attempt to Arrest the Notorious Bob Cook at Orangeville.

A despatch from Orangeville says: A terrible affair took place here on Saturday night about 10 o'clock in the store of Hughes & Norris, merchant tailors, West Broadway, in which Bob Cook, a notorious desperado, figured. On Saturday morning Cook returned to town from the west, where he went with his young bride two years ago, and going to the home of his mother-in-law, an old widow lady named Mrs. Thos. Reid, on Church street, inquired for his wife, who left him some time ago. Not receiving a satisfactory answer he proceeded to smash the dishes and doors, and terrified the old lady and her son, a young man in delicate health. A warrant for the outrage was sworn out and given to Chief Constable Sam Speers and Nightwatchman James Halbert to execute.

About 10 o'clock the officers saw Cook in the store mentioned; he had a jack-knife out whittling a stick. Cook, on the entry of the police, resisted arrest. Halbert struck at the knife with his baton, which was attached to his right wrist by the usual strap, and seizing Cook shoved him over on a table. The desperado slashed at the constable with the knife, cutting the wrist strap and terrible injuring Halbert, whose right wrist was half severed, the radial artery or pulse and ligaments were completely so, while the thumb hung useless. Cook then seized the officer's baton, dashed through the door, defied the crowd, and made his escape. Halbert was hurried to the surgery of Dr. T. H. Henry, where the lacerated wrist was dressed. Dr. James Henry assisting. Dr. T. H. Henry, interviewed Sunday, said the man would have bled to death but for prompt medical attendance; two hours were required to dress the wounds. He will never have the use of the right thumb, and lockjaw is a possible complication, said the doctor.

C. N. R. IS BRANCHING OUT

Intends Establishing Fleets of Vessels on Both Oceans.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: Mr. D. D. Mann, First Vice-President of the Canadian Northern Railway, arrived on Monday, and made a statement that directly C. N. R. steel reaches the Pacific coast, first-class liners, equal to any afloat, would be launched on both oceans, this being one result of the far-reaching arrangement between Mr. Mann and the British Columbia Executive.

Mr. Mann prophesied that the effect of Canadian Northern transcontinental competition would be as great a stimulus as the original coming of the C. P. R. He explained that the resignation of Hon. Messrs. Fulton and Tatlow, of the British Columbia Cabinet, was a surprise to him, happening after he left. He had no comment to make, but he regarded the deal as reasonable and safe. Negotiations began a year ago and had been conducted with the Premier through Attorney-General Bowser, in fact the Cabinet had been seen. Mr. Mann declared that, while Government assistance was necessary for transcontinental lines, private capital could construct branch lines, but vast tracks of unsettled country could not be spanned by companies unaided. Referring to the construction on the prairies, he said that five hundred miles of C. N. R. track had been graded this summer, and two hundred and fifty miles of steel laid. Another hundred would be completed this year.

SORRY SHE SMOKED.

Mrs. Hogan Fears It Will Shorten Her Life.

A despatch from Kansas City says: Mrs. Indiana Hogan, 64 years old, and her son, Levi Howard, 71 years old, whom she characterizes as "my baby," passed through this city en route from Anabel, Mo., to the Ozark regions, where they are going for the son's health. She has smoked since she was young, but regrets it now, because she fears it will shorten her life.

TWENTY MINERS KILLED.

A Terrible Colliery Tragedy at Glamorganshire, Wales.

A despatch from London says: A score of miners were killed by an explosion in the Rhymney Company's colliery at Glamorganshire, the most south-easterly county of Wales, on Friday. Manager Bowen and two companions, who atassner, he fired alive. Twelve men were killed in a dynamite explosion in a coal mine at Johnstown, Pa., on Saturday. Nine persons lost their lives in a fire in a business block at St. Johnsbury, Vt., on Saturday. Six ocean liners laden with wines and brandies reached New York Saturday afternoon and Sunday. Cadet Eugene A. Byrne of Buffalo received injuries from which he died during a football game at West Point, on Saturday. Carriage-builders in the United States say that the demand for horse-drawn vehicles is greater than it ever was. The copper producers of the United States are planning an amalgamation similar to that existing in the steel trade. A woman on her way to join her husband, a coal miner, in Alberta, was ordered deported from New York to Germany with her two children.

GENERAL.

The Austrian budget shows a deficit of over ten million dollars. The excess of deaths over births in France for 1908 was 28,203. Russia is deporting Koreans from Siberia. A French scientist has succeeded in taking moving pictures of microbes. The death of Prince Ito will not alter Japan's attitude towards Korea. The German Government has established a high school at Tsingtau, China. Australia approved the scheme of exchanging warships with the British navy. The Greek naval mineuters attacked ironclads at Athens with a flotilla of destroyers, but were beaten off. Great property damage and, it is feared, loss of life were caused by a tidal wave in the Mexican State of Tabasco. The French Premier warns the people of France that the enemies of the republic are striving to undermine the national public schools. The German Imperial Government requested the Federal Governments to hasten their report on the introduction of an unearned increment land tax.

MONEY IN POTATOES.

They Pay Better Than Wheat Out West.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: Farmers with large areas under potatoes this year are making more money out of tubers than out of wheat, although the latter is high in price and potatoes abnormally low. One farmer at Balmoral secured a yield of 480 bushels per acre on his patch, which, at 27 cents, gave him $129 per acre return. His best wheat was scarcely one-fourth of that. Potatoes are a remarkably heavy crop this year.

FELL INTO FOUNTAIN.

Unknown Man Drowned in Public Square at Montreal.

A despatch from Montreal says: An unknown man was found drowned in the basin of the Victoria Square fountain on Wednesday night. It is supposed that the man was intoxicated and fell into the basin, where his body was found several hours afterwards.

A despatch from St. Thomas says: Mrs. Anna Marriott, an aged lady, who lives alone, was rescued from her burning home early on Friday morning by Joseph W. Grice, a Wabash engineer, who when on his way to work, saw the fire. Mrs. Marriott had started the fire by accidentally upsetting a lamp, and then, frightened, had crawled under the bed. After being rescued, and while Mr. Grice was sending in an alarm, Mrs. Marriott went back into the burning house, making a second rescue for Mr. Grice necessary. The firemen extinguished the blaze before it had done any great amount of damage.

LITTLE BOY HANGED.

Became Entangled in a Rope and Fell Into Barrel.

A despatch from Strathroy says: Stanley, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward McGarvey, accidentally hanged himself in a peculiar manner here on Saturday. The little fellow was standing on an empty barrel adjusting a rope to make a swing, when by some means the rope became entangled about his head and he fell into the barrel. He was discovered by his brother George about an hour afterwards, but life was extinct.

STILL TRYING TO CHEAT.

Big Seizure of Ontario Apples in the West.

A despatch from Edmonton, Alta., says: A large consignment of Ontario fruit has been placed under the ban by Dominion Fruit Inspector McNeill of Calgary. He reported a shipment of 220 barrels from Elmwood, Ont., as being falsely marked, while 35 barrels in the same shipment were condemned. Thirty-five more barrels from Owen Sound were also condemned as being below grade of No. 2, under which they were sold.

THEFTS OF FREIGHT.

In the C. P. R. Yards at Fort William.

A despatch from Fort William says: For several months past car-robbers have been systematically at work in the C. P. R. yards here in spite of detectives and police. During three months about $4,000 worth of package freight has been stolen from cars and sheds, and it was not until Tuesday that clues were secured which warranted arrests. On Wednesday four employees of the company were placed under arrest, charged with thefts. Their names are James Miller, checker; Mike Golchack, Andy Zayk, and Mike Duriea, Hungarian freight-handlers.

NINE HURT IN EXPLOSION.

Portion of Parker & Co.'s Dye Works, Toronto, Wrecked.

A despatch from Toronto says: Eight men and a boy were injured, two of them seriously, in an explosion of gasoline on Thursday in the cleaning room, known as the benzine room, of R. Parker & Company's dye works at 791 Yonge street. The structure was partially wrecked, and Robert Harris, the foreman, was bodily blown through a window and buried under debris in an adjacent lane. The damage done to the building and contents was about $10,000, which is fully covered by insurance.

RULES OF HEALTH FOR MEN.

The rules of health that males must follow more generally than they do now are given as follows:

1. Avoid ill ventilated and foul smoking cars.
2. Keep your bedroom windows open at night.
3. Don't overeat. This is a particularly dangerous practice in winter time.
4. Avoid overindulgence in alcoholic drinks.
5. Don't go into the cold air in an overheated condition.
6. Don't be a draft crank. You need all the pure air you can get. If you wouldn't coddle yourself so much, you would get purer air to breathe, and your chance of avoiding pneumonia would be much better.

ROUGH ON THE MEN

A major in a certain English regiment has a great contempt for the capacity of any kind, and is also somewhat impatient. A writer in Tit-Bits declares that a sergeant once complained to him that he could get no man to undertake the duty of barber to the company.

"Is there no gardener in the company?" asked the major, testily. "See if you can find one, and send him to me."

The man was duly sent, but on receiving orders to act as barber, ventured to expostulate.

"Why?" cried the major. "If you can cut grass you can cut hair! Go and do it!"

Many a man is willing to lose a friend to acquire a dollar.

THE POST OFFICE REPORT

Enormous Increase in Canada's Business During Last Year.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The annual report of the Postmaster-General covering the last fiscal year shows that the number of letters and postcards handled in the mails during the year increased by 18,905,000, or over four per cent., as compared with the preceding twelve months. The number of postoffices increased 656, and there was an increase of 2,034 miles in the extent of the system over which the mails were carried. The revenue of the department for the year was $809,237 in excess of the expenditure. The stamp issue totaled $9,916,011, an increase of $500,000, or a little over six per cent. The introduction of the one cent drop-letter rate in cities was responsible for a very large increase in letters for local delivery. The total number of one cent stamps issued was 51,325,000.

The total number of letters passing through Canadian mails during the last fiscal year was 414,301,000, and of these no less than 91,108 were unstamped and were sent to the dead letter office.

As usual, Toronto heads the list of cities in volume of mail matter handled. The gross postal revenue for the city was $1,313,310.

Montreal comes next, with receipts of $963,729, and Winnipeg third, with $550,385. The mail business of other cities is shown by the following figures of gross revenue for the year: Vancouver, $205,436; Ottawa, $159,394; Hamilton, $184,746; London, $141,983; Halifax, $113,555 and St. John, $169,440.

An unusual smile adorned the faces of many of our citizens on Tuesday morning. Among their mail they had received a cheque from the defunct York Loan and Savings Co.

At the council meeting on Monday evening it was decided to have small red incandescent electric lamps placed on each of the fire alarm boxes in order that the citizens may easily locate them at night.

A concert will be given by the Mission Circle of Trinity Methodist church, Thursday evening, November 18th. The programme beginning at eight o'clock, refreshments served after. Admission 15c. 47-b Hallowe'en passed off very quietly in town on Saturday evening. Of course the youngsters enjoyed themselves with innocent amusement, but Chief of Police Graham informs us that not a single complaint was made to him.

Alfred Pennell, aged 78 years, 8 months and 25 days, died at Gananoque on Wednesday, October 27th, 1909. The remains were brought to Napanee on the 1.17 p. m. train on Saturday and interred at Riverside Cemetery.

The Women's Hospital Aid Society are pleased to announce the sum of $100, proceeds of Wonderland, Oct. 30th. The ladies wish to convey their very hearty thanks to Mr. Foster and all who helped in any way to make the undertaking so very successful. Sec'y.

A special meeting of the dairymen of the United Counties of Lennox and Addington, will be held in the town hall, Napanee, on Tuesday, December 7th, at 1.30 p. m., sharp. The addresses will undoubtedly prove interesting to milk producers, proprietors and makers.

On Monday evening, Thomas D. Minnes, D.D.G.M., of Kingston Masonic district, accompanied by several leading Kingston Masons, paid an official visit to Prince Arthur Lodge, at Odessa. After the lodge session, the visitors were entertained to a fine supper in Sproule's hotel.

The untidy appearance of Dundas street on Sunday was the cause of much comment by several citizens. The large amount of loose papers and dirt certainly did not add to its beauty. One of our most prominent merchants was heard to remark that it was a disgrace, and that the council should pay a little more attention to the streets and have them kept tidy.

On Friday morning last Mr. Canfield Young, Sandhurst, lost his barn and all the season's crop by fire. A traction engine in passing pulled in near the barn to allow a rig to pass and it is supposed a spark from the engine caused the fire. Mr. Young had just completed extensive repairs to his barn, cement floors, new roof, etc., and his loss is a hardship. The building was insured, but the contents were a total loss.

hall in the library building. The hall was filled to its capacity. The President of the Society called the meeting to order and after a brief statement of the work which has been done during the summer months, introduced Mr. Barlow Cumberland, President of the Ontario Historical Society. Mr. Cumberland gave a very interesting address on the work of Historical Societies throughout the Province and was very complimentary in his references to the local organization. He spoke of the splendid work which had been done by the Lennox and Addington Society since his last visit two years ago. Prof. C. F. Lavel, of Queen's University, was then introduced and delivered an able lecture on "The Liberation of Italy." Prof. Lavel has a great many admirers in Napanee as a result of his lecture a year ago, on India. He more than lived up to the high standard set at that time. The lantern slides given at the end of the lecture illustrated some of the scenes of the drama enacted in Italy in the 19th century. The President thanked Mr. Cumberland and Prof. Lavel for coming to Napanee and giving such a pleasant evening. The meeting adjourned after singing "God Save the King."

The Nassau system of scoring was used. The players report an excellent afternoon's sport and fine entertainment from the Kingston Club.

Rapley Still Unround.

Active enquiries are still being made for the whereabouts of Mr. B. F. Rapley, the traveller who disappeared from the Campbell House a couple of weeks ago. The offer of a reward brought a number of clues which were all followed up by Chief of Police Graham, but were all found to be faulty. Probably the most likely clue yet found was the news from Brockville that Rapley or someone answering very closely his description had been seen in Brockville on Tuesday of last week. Detective Murphy was notified and coming to Napanee met a traveller who said he knew Rapley and had seen him in Brockville. The detective went to Brockville on Tuesday eve but up to the present had not found the missing man. On Wednesday he was informed that a person answering closely Rapley's description was seen by a lady about six miles west of Brockville and the detective is at present following up the clue. The man seen in Brockville supposed to have been Rapley, was acting in a strange manner.

Opera House, Nov. 15th.

"In The Lily and The Prince" the companion play to "When Knighthood Was in Flower," which comes to the Brisco Opera House on Monday evening, Nov. 15th, Miss Lucy Blake has been fortunate enough to find a worthy opportunity for a display of her infinite talent and cleverness. She more than pleases in every respect. Her interpretation is more than satisfying; deft touches here and there have made it her own creation, not an imitation. As "Angela" Miss Blake presents a character which never allows the interest in it and the play to abate; a loveable character, marked as it is by the "opposition" of a hot temperment, which will bestow the hand only where the heart is gone. The coquetry of a lovely and loving woman; the courage which makes her sacrifice for the man she loves; the triumph of a lone woman over her enemies; all these phases and more are portrayed by Miss Blake, with a finely shaded artistry growing out of wondrous ability, a thorough comprehension of her part and complete sympathy with it. Miss Blake's support is well in keeping with her worth, even with the smallest part in the cast. Mr. Claude E. Kimball makes a most dashing and handsome Prince, and is an actor who combines unusual ability with the natural graces of a gentleman. The play is staged and costumed with all the elegance that mark the first production of this beautiful romantic drama.
